GEORGE EASTMAN, for whom tens of millions profitably press the button, while he does the rest, arrives from the jungles, leaving seven lions, one rhinoceros and one buffalo with good cause for complaint.

They did not dream that a 72-year-old philanthropist would come all the way from Rochester, N. Y., to shoot the life out of them.

KILLING LIONS is useful, but Mr. Eastman has work on hand ten millions of times more useful, namely, the development of education through moving pictures. Devoting time and intelligence to that work, he will render service to all living children and to billions unborn.

THE EUROPEAN steel trust is now in shape, and old-fashioned trusts look small compared with the modern industrial-financial dinosaur of Europe. The steel industries of Germany, France, Luxembourg and Belgium are all in one company, organized to fight the rest of the world.

Luckily, we have a tariff, useful in fighting. But we need the biggest possible business units to compete with modern methods.

THIS IS the one hundred and thirty-ninth birthday of the United States Constitution. It has worn well. The fathers that built it with long struggling, seeking to protect the rights of separate States, would be surprised if they could read the new and fancy frills attached to their document.

What would surprise them most, not one of them so far as known being a total abstainer, would be the eighteenth amendment with its bootleg and crime by-products.

THOSE ANCIENTS, having got rid of a King, determined that no kingly power should ever arise in America.

It never occurred to them that power MUST BE SOMEWHERE. They could not foresee that taxation without representation far greater than that of King George would soon be located in Wall Street, and elsewhere in the offices of great corporations.

THE COMBINED ages of Rachel Kriegel, Chaim Rothstein and Chaye Sents are 299 years. These old people—Chaim Rothstein is 105 years old—live in the home of the Daughters of Jacob, and observe a rigid fast, beginning today, which is Yom Kippur. They could be excused because of their age, but refuse to be excused.

DR. FRANKEL, of the Metropolitan Life Company, says the present restriction of immigration will soon end poverty among Jewish people in the United States. And in ten or twenty years "there will be no need for relief."

GEN. OBREGON SLAIN BY YAQUIS, IS REPORT

Mexico City, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Among the wild, unconfirmed rumors regarding the rebellion of the Yaqui Indians in the State of Sonora is one that General Alvaro Obregon, former President, has been done to death by the rebels.

Officially nothing has been given out, except that troops were being rushed to Sonora with instructions to exterminate the Yaquis unless they surrendered.

The dispatches say that the Yaqui General Mori, deposed by Chief Luis Matus, has organized a troop of 400 to fight the latter's tribesmen.

An unconfirmed report says that Chief Matus had issued a manifesto demanding President Calles' resignation, his succession by Adolfo de la Huerta, and appointment of the revolutionary leader Jose Maria Maytorena as Governor of Sonora, announcing he would capture General Obregon as a hostage and kill him if these demands were not met.

Dispatches from Mazatlan said Obregon was delayed at Kilometer 93, a station on the railway line to Cajeme, having been on a train that was held up by the Yaquis.

SCHOONER WRECKED BY BOSTON-BOUND COLLIER IN POLLOCK RIP SLUE

Tossed about by a 50-mile gale in a blanket of fog, the Eastern Crown, a collier, plowed into the three-masted schooner Rebecca R. Douglas today at the eastern entrance to Pollock Rip Slue off Cape Cod, tearing away the bow of the schooner and injuring the latter's crew of seven men. One of the men may die.

The shattered schooner filled in three minutes after the collision and became waterlogged. Captain J. W. Gay of the Douglas and his crew were rescued by Patrol Boat No. 241 of the Nantucket Coast Guard Base No. 1, were given first aid and then taken to the Nantucket Hospital. All were badly cut and bruised and suffered from exposure.

One man, believed to be the lookout of the schooner, was so badly injured that hospital authorities did not expect him to live. The crew

JONES AND VON ELM IN LEAD AT HALFWAY MARK

By BILL GRIMES

Short Hills, N. J., Sept. 17—(AP)—Bobby Jones, defending titleholder, was three up on Francis Ouimet of Boston at the end of the first 18 holes of their 36-hole match in the semi-finals of the national amateur golf championship today.

George Von Elm of Los Angeles finished the first round of his 36-hole match six up on George Dawson of Chicago.

Dawson and Von Elm halved the first hole in par fives after the Chicago player had failed to sink a five-foot putt for a birdie.

Long, straight drives sailed from their clubs at the tee, but Von Elm was in the rough to the left with his second. Dawson overplayed his approach, but pitched up within close range. Von Elm was 25 feet

GASTON STUDIES RUM CONTROL IN MONTREAL

Having declared unreservedly against the dry law and in favor of its being "amended, common-sensed or abolished, Colonel William A. Gaston, Democratic nominee for Governor, is in Montreal today making a first-hand study of the Province of Quebec liquor system.

The visit of Colonel Gaston to learn for himself the workings of government-controlled sale and distribution of liquors was revealed by Chairman Charles H. McGlue of the Democratic State Committee, in a statement which said:

"Colonel Gaston wants to learn by personal investigation what the system is, how it works and serves the public and how such a law may be adapted to American needs and substituted for the present conditions in America.

"Colonel Gaston is not content with surveys and second-hand opinions. He wants to see; he wants to know; he wants to be able to speak with full knowledge of the subject to his fellow-citizens in Massachusetts.

"He wants the Volstead law amended, common-sensed or abol

DEATH AND ARREST FACE MRS. M'PHERSON

Los Angeles, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—With the arrest of five persons scheduled by District Attorney Asa Keyes and statements of the witnesses adding to the mass of evidence in the Aimee-Semple McPherson kidnaping investigation, the serious illness of the evangelist today threatened to delay the third illness inquiry into her five weeks disappearance.

Reports of the evangelist's illness Wednesday were followed by her collapse at an Angelus Temple service and the subsequent announcement of her physician that a dangerous infection might cause death if complications developed.

The illness was described as an abscess of the nose, close to the brain. The physician said that although her temperature had dropped from the 102 mark, reached last night, it would be three days before the danger would be past.

District Attorney Keyes said today he had prepared complaints

'BABE ELOPERS' MAY BE HERE

Ellsworth, Me., Sept. 17.—Maine's "babes in the woods," whose third elopement will result in their commitment to a State institution when they are apprehended, are now believed to be headed toward Boston and not Canada.

Instead of hiding in the woods, as was the plan in their first two escapades, David Coughlin and Nellie Piper, fourteen-year-old soulmates, this time are boldly motoring in state to Boston, where they intend to seek shelter and a peaceful haven at the home of the boy's sister, Mrs. George Hoyt, of Somerville, police now believe.

Playing the principal roles in a double elopement with their pal, Colby Foss, twenty, and his sweetheart, they started Wednesday morning from Bangor in sedan stolen by Foss, police allege.

David and Nellie, determined to checkmate their parents and authorities who two times previously

BRITON SWIMS THE CHANNEL

Dover, Eng., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Norman Leslie Dereham of South End, England, today finished a swim across the English Channel from Cape Griz-Nez, France.

Dereham made the swim in 13 hours, 56 minutes. He left Gris-Nez at 9 o'clock last night and landed in St. Margaret's Bay this morning at 10:56 o'clock.

The record for the swim is 11 hours 5 minutes, made by the French baker, Georges Michel, on September 10.

By his performance Dereham wins the prize of $5,000 offered by the News of the World for the first British-born subject to beat Gertrude Ederle's time of 14 hours, 36 minutes.

Dereham is the fifth person to swim the Channel during this season.

Derham is 28 and has a wife and two children.

Asked what he would do with the prize money, he replied: "Charity begins at home."

MRS. FRENCH, VICTIM OF EMBOLISM, UNDER KNIFE IN BROOKLINE

On a plain white bed in the New England Baptist Hospital, Brookline, this newspaper learned today, Mrs. Pauline LeRoy French, society leader of New York and Newport, lies in a critical condition, with one leg amputated below the knee and another amputation imminent.

Mrs. French was admitted to the hospital on August 20 as an emergency surgical case and the leg was amputated directly afterward by Dr. Halsey B. Loder of No. 520 Commonwealth avenue, who also is a visiting surgeon at the Boston City Hospital.

A valiant battle is under way to save the noted woman, sister-in-law of Elsie French Vanderbilt and mother of Julia Steele French who, in 1911, electrified society by eloping with and marrying "Handsome Jack" Geraghty, Newport chauffeur.

Mrs. Geraghty's second husband was Howard T. Williams and she lived with him in Waban, part of Newton, until his death several weeks ago.

Following his death, Mrs. French came to Waban to visit her widowed

PIN SACCO PLEA ON NEW PROOF; SAY JURY JUST

Admitting outright for the first time that the jury in the original trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, nearly six years ago, brought in "a just verdict on the evidence submitted," Attorney William G. Thompson, in Superior Court at Dedham today, made his last plea for a new trial by declaring newly-discovered evidence must be submitted to the judgment of a new jury.

The hearing on the new trial motion came to an end and Judge Thayer took the arguments under advisement, announcing he will not make a decision for several weeks. He asked to be supplied with a complete record of the case from the beginning to the present, including all affidavits and briefs in this hearing.

As the State ended its argument in opposition to a new trial, Thompson was on his feet with a vigorous protest against virtually the whole of the two and a half-hour statement of Assistant District Attorney Ranney.

DAUGHERTY IN N. Y. ON DAY OF 'BRIBE' DINNER

New York, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The government today placed on record documentary evidence tending to prove that Harry M. Daugherty was in New York on September 30, 1921, when Thomas W. Miller gave Richard Merton, German metal magnate, checks for $6,453,979.97 at a champagne dinner in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

Daugherty and Miller are on trial charged with conspiring to defraud the government of their "fair and unprejudiced" services as government officials in permitting the release to Merton of assets of the charging five persons, identified with the case, of conspiracy to defeat justice.

He named Mrs. McPherson; her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy; Kenneth G. Ormiston, friend of the evangelist and former Angelus Temple radio operator; John Doe Martin and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielaff.

Mrs. Sielaff was named following her statement she was employed by Mrs. McPherson to "frame" the "Miss X" hoax, whereby she was to masquerade as the companion of Ormiston during a ten-day sojourn at a cottage at Carmel, Cal., shortly after the evangelist disappeared.

She named a "Mr. Martin" as the man who first asked her to undertake the "Miss X" role.

"KIDNAPED" BY MOTHER

A new witness was linked with case when Harry C. Swift, a truck driver, who claimed to have witnessed the kidnaping of the evangelist from Ocean Park beach the afternoon of May 18, told Keyes that the persons who took her away in an automobile were Ormiston and her mother. He then issued a detailed statement giving his version of the kidnaping.

As soon as the warrant for Ormiston's arrest is placed in the hands of detectives for service, he will surrender if promised immunity, his attorney, S. S. Hahn, has announced. The radio man was said to be near Los Angeles and in readiness to face the charges.

The complaints were ordered by Keyes, following a statement in which he declared that "an atmosphere of a gigantic hoax" surrounded the evangelist's "unbelievable" kidnaping story.

He added that the situation had developed into a nation-wide scandal as the result of the "brazen activities of Mrs. McPherson and her friends to build up false alibis for her."

daughter and then the two went to Plymouth where a brief vacation away from their usual circle was planned.

While at the Hotel Pilgrim, however, the 61-year-old society leader was stricken with embolism, or a clot-condition in the arteries. Dr. Harry Jennings, Newport specialist, was hastily summoned and he raced to Plymouth.

Many days of battling failed to stem the spread of the malady and Mrs. French was brought to the New England Baptist Hospital, where, a few hours after her admittance, her left leg was amputated four inches below the knee.

Then, according to reports at the hospital, complications set in and today it was feared another amputation would be necessary. Her condition is critical.

Mrs. French is a descendant, direct, of early settlers in Manhattan. As a noted society belle, Pauline Le Roy, she was married in 1884 to Amos Tuck French, member of another noted family and a brother of Lady Cheylesmore of England and Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons, first wife of the late Alfred Vanderbilt.

One of her daughters was first the wife of Samuel Wagstaff and later of Donald C. MacRae. The sons are Francis Ormond French, Edward T. French, Stuyvesant Le Roy French and Amos Tuck French, Jr.

American Metal Company impounded during the war. At that time Daugherty was Attorney-General and Miller alien property custodian.

United States Attorney Buckner placed on record travel vouchers, railroad and Pullman records, showing that Daugherty and Jesse W. Smith, his "man Friday," returned from a trip to Ohio on September 29, and their expense accounts were shown to prove that they were still in New York on September 30.

Similar records were also offered to show that Daugherty and Smith were in New York on April 19 the same year.

This date, the government has stated, is that of the original meeting between Merton, Smith and the late John T. King, Republican leader.

Merton has testified that he obtained release of the American Metal assets by action of Daugherty and Miller after he had paid King a fee of $441,000.

of the collier apparently escaped without injury, while the damage to the collier itself is thought to be slight.

Both vessels were bound for Boston. The schooner Douglas of Machias, Me., was laden with laths. The Eastern Crown had a heavy cargo of coal. A heavy gale was blowing at the time and a thick fog is believed to have hidden the vessels from each other. The nose of the collier chopped the bow of the schooner off cleanly.

The coast guard destroyer Beale was rushed to the scene of the collision and stood by waiting for the cutter Ossipee and ready for an attempt to tow the wrecked schooner to port. The Eastern Crown was also standing by. A heavy sea was running.

The Douglas, owned by Clarence W. Small of Machiasport, Me., was built in 1894 and has a gross tonnage of 275. The Eastern Crown, a United States Shipping Board craft, was built in Japan in 1917. She was bound from Newport News to Boston.

sought to dissolve their infatuation for each other, secretly left home Tuesday night and hid in the woods adjacent to Wyman Park, investigators say.

Then, in the morning, they were picked up by Foss in the sedan and the trio motored to Bangor, Me., where Foss' inamorata, whose name is withheld, joined them. Police declare the four, apparently in jubilant spirits, were recognized by State Patrolman Harold Corson as they traveled merrily towards Massachusetts.

Boston authorities, as well as those of other cities along the route, believed to have been taken by the two couples, have been asked to be on the lookout for them and to arrest the entire party on sight.

The third elopement of David and his sweetheart has proved rather prosaic to their parents, the police and neighbors and, instead of kindness and solicitude for their welfare, such as marked their previous essays, they will find the harsh finger of the law pointing in their direction upon their return.

Judge Harry L. Crabtree of Ellsworth district court, and County Attorney Blaisdell, today stated they would recommend that Nellie and David be placed in a State institution.

Characterizing their conduct as shameful and a menace to the morals of others of their age, not only at the Ellsworth high school, but children in general, the magistrate today stated the affair was now out of the hands of the parents and in those of the law.

DR. J. L. HANSON

HANSON HELD IN EARLY REVEL

Dr. J. Leo Hanson, who is out on bail on a charge of being an accessory to the alleged illegal operation on Edith Green, dismembered student nurse, was arraigned today in Roxbury district court on charges of drunkenness and carrying obscene pictures.

Dr. Hanson pleaded guilty to being drunk and not guilty on the second charge. He was held for hearing a week from today.

Dr. Hanson was arrested by police of Back Bay division in the Fenway, near Audubon road, after residents of that vicinity complained by telephone that a man was in the middle of the road cheering, dancing and singing.

A crowd gathered at the scene before Mounted Officer Archie White arrested him, having been attracted by his "celebrating." At Station 16 the police dug up an old warrant charging him with having obscene pictures in his possession.

Dr. Hanson was taken in custody in New York city during the investigation of the death of Edith Green, whose dismembered body was found by the wall of New Calvary Cemetery in Mattapan. He was brought here and indicted as an alleged accessory at the time that Dr. Thomas E. Walsh of Washington street, South End, was charged with performing the alleged illegal surgery.

DENY PLEAS TO ABATE 'GRAFT CASE CHARGES

Judge Raymond in Suffolk Superior Court today denied petitions of defendants indicted in the alleged $2,000,000 city graft probe, for pleas in abatement, following closing arguments of counsel.

Officials of the Warren Brothers Company and the Central Construction Company named in the indictments returned by the special grand jury, charged irregularities in the jury procedure.

Immediately after Judge Raymond announced his decision, counsel for the defendants, indicated that the case would be taken to Supreme Court.

Judge Raymond said he had found no evidence that the district attorney or any of his assistants had said or done anything that could be construed as influencing the Grand Jury in its deliberations. He then went on to cite the law and functions of the Grand Jury.

Damon E. Hall, counsel for Warren Brothers Company, and Judge Frederic H. Chase, attorney for the Central Construction Company, filed exceptions to the decision.

The decision was announced just as Assistant District Attorney Timothy F. Callahan arose to begin the State's summation. Judge Raymond halted him as he addressed the court, and then proceeded to give his decision.

Attorney Hall in his suming up, charged Assistant District Attorney Alpert had intimated to the grand jurors that Warren Brothers had tried to conceal their books from the District Attorney's office and that only a minority of the jury had returned the indictments.

Two jurors, he said, had entered the investigation after it had already begun. This, he declared, was "contrary to the fundamental principles of the grand jury system."

'SACCO VERDICT JUST!' SAYS HIS OWN LAWYER

"I care nothing about the decision of the first trial jury," shouted Attorney Thompson. "The point is that there is now a wealth of evidence that the jury should have listened to.

DENIES DEATH PLOT.

"Even if Your Honor considers this new evidence is not of sufficient weight to have changed the last jury's verdict, that makes no difference.

"The question is whether it is of sufficient weight so the former jury should have heard it, and I say that a new jury must hear it now.

High points in the opposition argument by Ranney were his emphatic denial that there was a conspiracy between the United States government and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to "railroad" Sacco and Vanzetti because they were radicals, and his warning to Judge Webster Thayer to be "on guard against the falsehoods of Celestino Madeiros."

Madeiros is under sentence of death for slaying a Wrentham bank cashier and has made a confession which, if true, exonerates Sacco and Vanzetti of the crime for which they were convicted, the slaying of a paymaster in South Braintree on April 15, 1920.

CALLS MORELLI COWARD

He declared there was nothing illegal in a working agreement, if one existed, between the Federal government and the State to exchange evidence at the time of the trial.

Joe Morelli, one of the Providence gang now accused of the South Braintree murder by the Sacco-Vanzetti defense, was described by the assistant district attorney as a coward who could not have committed "the most brutal, wicked and desperate murder ever committed in Massachusetts."

Morelli, he said, has made a sworn statement describing his movements on the day of the crime and according to government records was at that time deriving a very satisfactory income from the pilfering of freight in and around Providence.

DEFENDS EVIDENCE SWAP.

"The charge that there was a conspiracy between the United States and Massachusetts falls flat," declared Ranney. "It is claimed that the Department of Justice agents, unable to gather evidence that these men were deportable radicals, made an arrangement with former District Attorney Katzmann that whatever evidence the latter could obtain during the trial he would turn over to the Federal government.

"Concede that there was an understanding concerning the evidence, is it an illegal act? Now, if Attorney Thompson proved that these two arms of the law got together and fabricated evidence and procured a conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti by perjury, that would be a very different matter, and we would go into court and cry out, 'Stop these proceedings!'

"But there was no conspiracy. Exchange of evidence is a courtesy that Massachusetts extends to all other States and to the United States government. The defense would also have you believe that Mr. Katzmann told falsehoods to your honor at the trial, but that is not so, and your honor has previously made a finding of fact that the handling of the case was strictly honorable.

CITES MADEIROS LIES.

"About this talk of efforts to get into the secret files of the Department of Justice, let me say that officials did all they could for the defence attorney, Mr. Thompson, but he or nobody else can get at the secret records of the government of the United States. Senator Butler was in the matter simply as one who was appealed to by his constituents for aid."

DEATH PROBERS TO GRILL MRS. MILLS' CHUM

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The State's effort to obtain more evidence in the Hall-Mills murder case was directed today against Minnie Clark, reputed to have been a confidante of the slain Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

Miss Clark is to be questioned in Somerville concerning love letters passing between the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Mills.

Inspector Underwood, in charge of investigators, said if the questioning corroborated stories his men have heard, Miss Clark would prove a valuable State witness in the coming murder trial of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, the murdered rector's widow; Henry and Willie Stevens, her two brothers, and Henry Carpender, a cousin.

Underwood said he had been informed that Miss Clark, who sang in the choir of the Rev. Mr. Hall's New Brunswick church with Mrs. Mills, was friendly with her, and knew more than she had revealed in the original investigation four years ago.

Will Demand Heavier Bail for Mrs. Hall.

Somerville, N. J., Sept. 17 (I.N.S.).—Pleas of "not guilty" will be entered today by Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, her brothers Henry and Willie Stevens, and their cousin, Henry de la B. Carpender, when they are arraigned before Supreme Court Justice Parker.

Whether the white-haired, aristocratic widow of the Rev. Edward W. Hall is to share the imprisonment of her kinsmen pending their trial for the murder of the clergyman and his "soul mate," Mrs. Eleanor B. Mills, will be decided by Justice Parker.

Senator Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the strange crabapple tree murder mystery, said today that he does not personally desire to have Mrs. Hall rearrested and placed in jail. He admitted he will ask for a sweeping increase in her present bail of $15,000, however.

Following questioning of Ralph Gorsline, New Brunswick church vestryman, today by investigators, it was rumored that he may be arrested later in the day. The further quizzing was a surprise.

Gorsline admitted before the Grand Jury that he had visited De Russey's Lane, near New Brunswick, the night of the murders and had heard shots and screams.

SCIENCE SEPARATES "LOCKED TWINS"

Mrs. Florence Potter and her twin babies, Molly Rose and William, born as "locked twins" through a Caesarian operation. Such births are the rarest known to medical science. They were separated by a surgeon's knife. (I.N.R.)

R. T. MILLETT DIES ON TRAIN

Springfield, Sept. 17.—Ralph T. Millett of Boston, secretary of the Brockton Fair and noted New England sportsman, died on a train here today, while en route from Saranac Lake, N. Y., to Boston.

Millett was former manager of the Codman Square and Bay State hospitals, and was well known by horsemen and fair followers.

With him when he died were his wife, Edna Adams Millett; his father, Dr. C. N. S. Millett, and Miss Sarah McCarthy, superintendent of the Codman Square Hospital.

GALES MENACE SHIPPING

With a fierce northeaster raging off Nantucket and a hurricane of 100 miles velocity swirling through the Bahamas, the Boston weather bureau today held out little hope of settled weather hereabouts for thirty-six hours to come.

Storm signals were posted early today along the New England coast to warn shipping of the forty-eight-miles-an-hour Nantucket gale, while Washington broadcast the menace facing vessels heading for the tropics.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Generally cloudy tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature; moderate northerly winds.

ACTRESS GETS SAGE'S IDEAS AT HARVARD

Miss Beatrice Kay, vivacious comedienne of the "Daring Duchess," now playing in Boston, didn't know she possessed philosophic value. She always entertained the belief that she was naturally funny.

But she learned differently when she visited the philosophical congress where 420 brilliant minds have congregated to exchange ideas on metaphysics, ethics and other similar subjects in Smith quadrangle at Harvard College.

There she was told that in the higher planes of philosophy where reality and truth and reason battled for supremacy, even the girl of the stage, with humorous patter and recreational activity, had a substantial share.

Dr. M. Grant Duff-Ainslie, British poet-philosopher, congratulated her as a member of the theatrical profession for the charm of stage rhythm.

"I'm keen about the stage. When I reach New York I'll do the shows, oh, yes, every one indeed. Your rhythm is so good. Your musical sense so much like that of the continent. In England we have no musical sense. We are too sentimental about our stage. We attend performances for the star rather than for the performance. Oh, indeed. Critical, you say! Oh, no. Not the English. A performance may be atrocious, but still, if the star is accepted, that is all that matters.

Mr. Ainslie then spoke of American conversation.

"We in England have not developed the art of conversation. At a dinner party it is an unwritten law that a man talks half of the time to the lady on his right and the other half to the lady on his left. No cross table talking. And then when the conversation does proceed it usually takes the 'enlivening' form of the terrible weather of the past few days or the health."

The seriousness of philosophy was supplied by Dr. Will Durant of New York, whose latest book, "The Story of Philosophy" was then subject of comment. In an address Dr. Durant declared "philosophy is obscure but so is Shelley, so is science, so is woman; so is anything interesting. Philosophy is dishonest. We dress up the beloved prejudices of our heart, or the theology of our aunts in the garb of sternly objective reason. It is hard to tell whether some philosophers have been simpletons or diplomats."

PRIMA DONNA PUTS END TO DIVORCE RUMORS

12-WEEK TRIAL SEPARATION
After a spirited exchange of letters and cables, differences between Madame Alda and her husband, Gatti Casazza, Metropolitan Opera director, have been patched up. Casazza will leave Italy soon for New York and the prima donna is happily looking forward to the reunion.

VINEYARD HAVEN MAN HELD FOR AUTO DEATH

Vineyard Haven, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Joseph Garcia of this village was held in $1,000 bonds in District Court, Oak Bluffs, today on a charge of manslaughter as a result of the death at a hospital here of Mrs. Allen M. Smalley of Westboro. Mrs. Smalley died from injuries received when her automobile was in collision with a car driven by Garcia. This was the first fatal automobile accident on Martha's Vineyard in several years.

SNOW STOPS HARVESTING IN ALBERTA, CANADA

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Central and Northern Alberta are in the grip of unseasonable weather with no prospect of immediate change. Winter covers have appeared on automobile radiators and men are wearing Winter overcoats and woolen gloves. The ground is covered by a deep mantle of snow and harvesting operations have been postponed.

AGED WOMAN IS KILLED BY AN AUTO TRUCK

Mrs. Georgie Deihl, seventy-three, of No. 41 Prescott street, Everett, was instantly killed today in front of No. 316 Main street, Everett, by an auto truck that backed over her.

The truck, delivering ice cream at a store in Main street, was driven by Edwin O. Learned, twenty-one, of No. 34 Fremont street, Somerville.

Learned, having made a delivery, climbed to the seat of the truck and backed it. A scream jumped him from his seat and he found the elderly woman beneath the wheels.

The truck was jacked up and she was rushed to the emergency room at Everett police headquarters, where the city physician pronounced her dead.

Learned was arraigned in Malden court charged with manslaughter and was bailed in $1,000 pending an inquest.

WORCESTER MARINE KILLED IN COLLISION

Washington, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Two marines were dead and three others were injured today as the result of an automobile collision about a mile and a half from the marine base at Quantico, Va.

Those killed were Privates William James Ormon, twenty-three, Worcester, Mass., and Wilbur Albert Duchman, twenty-three, Patterson, N. Y.

The four privates were grouped about an automobile parked on the road between Quantico and Triangle when an automobile struck their machine, according to the stories.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Private William James Ormon was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Ormon, 4 Hawley street.

Killed to Win Wife

Gary, Ind., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—William "Red" Donaldson, a former Texac cowboy, was found guilty of the murder of Joseph Mullins, of Gary, today, with a recommendation that he be sentenced to life imprisonment. Donaldson was charged with having fatally shot Mullins so that he might marry Mrs. Mullins.

MELLON BREAKS SILENCE, BUT SAYS NAUGHT

New York, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—After drastic precautions had been taken to shield Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon from reporters and photographers upon his arrival today from abroad, the Secretary himself broke his rule of declining interviews and talked to newspaper men.

Mr. Mellon declined to discuss European affairs and said his trip abroad had merely been for pleasure. He said at no time had he discussed issues of national or international character, although he had met a number of distinguished statesmen, including Premier Mussolini at Rome.

DIDN'T TALK ABROAD.

The Secretary was taken off his liner at Quarantine on a special revenue cutter. The pier had been ordered cleared of reporters and photographers. With Mr. Mellon were his son, Paul, and James McKay, a schoolmate of his son.

Told that certain interviews had been attributed to him abroad, Mr. Mellon replied: "I made no statements while abroad."

"Did you discuss the French debt situation with Premier Briand or other Frenchmen?" he was asked.

"No, I did not discuss or say anything on the French debt. I met a number of men in political and governmental circles in Paris and other cities of France, but in every case they were purely social calls."

When efforts were made to gain from him some observation of Europe's financial and economic rehabilitation, he said:

"You will have to excuse me."

LIKES MUSSOLINI.

"The fact is," he added, "I got through this trip without making any statements or comments of any kind. I have said more to you now than to other newspaper men during my whole trip."

Mr. Mellon said he found Mussolini a most interesting man and that "he seems to have things well in hand."

"What did you talk with him about?" he was asked.

"Oh, general matters. Mussolini does not speak English well and I do no better with Italian. We talked with the aid of others. Our conversations were very interesting. I saw him twice."

FRENCH DENY MOVE ON ITALY WITH TROOPS

Rome, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The Giornale D'Italia says the police have made 335 additional arrests in continuing their investigations of the attempt to assassinate Premier Mussolini by means of bombs. Six hundred houses were searched, mostly in the poorer section, as possible refuges for subversive elements.

Many of those previously detained have been released. Among those held is the notorious Anarchist, Enrico Malatesta.

Paris, Sept. 17 (A.P.)—Formal denial of reports in Berlin that France was concentrating troops on the Italian frontier was issued by War Minister Painleve today.

"It is regrettable that such news should be disseminated by Germany on the day after her entry into the League of Nations," M. Painleve said.

The report was telegraphed to the Berlin newspaper Gazetta De Voss by its Paris correspondent, who said he had learned from well-informed circles that France had concentrated in recent days no less than six divisions in the region

ELOPES WITH A HARVARD MAN

A marriage certificate returned to the Cambridge city clerk's office today from Waterbury, Ct., revealed the secret marriage of John L. Prescott, twenty-two, popular Harvard student of No. 47 Randolph Hall, and Miss Helen Agnes Jordan, twenty-one-year old New York society girl of No. 468 Riverside drive, New York city.

According to the return, the young couple were married August 23 in Waterbury, Ct., by Rev. Joseph L. Titus of No. 16 Church stret.

Neither Prescott nor his bride could be reached today. A sister of Prescott, living in Norwood, Prescott's home, expressed the greatest surprise when informed that her brother was married. She admitted that she knew her brother and Miss Jordan had been keeping company, but was unaware that marriage was in the offing.

Prescott is a senior at Harvard. His bridbe, who gave her occupation as a student, is prominent in New York society. She gave as her birthplace Carnegie, Pa.

THRONG CHEERS LEADERS AT BRITISH MINE PARLEY

London, Sept. 17 (I.N.S.) — Unusual scenes and tense excitement prevailed in Downing street today as Premier Baldwin made efforts to bring about negotiations for the settlement of the coal strike. A huge crowd, aided by a uniformed band from Wales, assembled before 10 Downing street and welcomed the leaders of the striking miners, Herbert Smith and A. J. Cook, as they entered for a conference with the Premier. As Cook and Smith entered by the front door, Evan Williams, representative of the operators, left by the rear door. Williams had been summoned by the Premier to discuss the possibility of the operators proceeding to negotiate district agreements for settlement of the strike, these agreements to be later given approval by the national body of miners.

THIRST FOR TEACHINGS OF DARWIN JAILS HIM

New York, Sept. 17.—Darwin's "Origin of Species" has sent Frank Cummings, 51, back to jail.

In the last fifteen years Cummings has spent a lot of time in jail for "borrowing" books from strangers, book stores and libraries.

Cummings wanted to read Darwin, so he helped himself to the copy from a counter in the Pennsylvania station book store. He told the magistrate he didn't mind going to jail.

He said books were the one great passion of his life, and that he began as a student of history and geography. The Scopes trial fired his interest in Darwin, he said.

STATE POLICE SEIZE 15 AUTOS AND MUCH RUM

Raids in seven towns and one city, recovery of fifteen stolen automobiles, seizure of thousands of gallons of liquor and a total of 825 arrests featured activities of the State patrol in August. Places raided were in Salisbury, Nantasket, Whitinsville, Ashland, Sudbary, Rehoboth, Oak Bluffs and Holyoke.

One 1,500-gallon and five 100-gallon stills were captured. Of arrests 110 were for drunkenness and 246 for violations of auto laws.

JAILED FOR $13 UNPAID TAX

James M. Hanarahan, Jr., formerly of Waldron street and now a resident of Huron avenue, Cambridge, has been locked up by State constables for non-payment of taxes.

Hanrahan was taken at work and committed to Charles street jail, Boston. He has not been able to get his release.

Hanrahan's tax was a personal levy for 1924 and amounted to $13.32. With constable's charges and other expenses, the bill is now $27.13.

Constables Borofski and Belson are continuing work on the taxes.

lished and he wants to be in a position to offer a substitute that will promote real temperance and respect for law, for the present prohibition system that has proven such a dreadful evil.

"At the Democratic convention Tuesday, Sept. 28, Colonel Gaston will give the convention his views; will tell exactly where he stands, without any dodging or evasion."

In his own statement declaring against the dry law, Colonel Gaston asserted that prohibition is obnoxious to the freeman everywhere and that only laws permitting freedom of conduct have been enforceable; laws that have had the support and approval of a majority affected.

Colonel Gaston's outspoken declaration was made, he said, as a result of repeated requests that he make a statement of his position on the temperance question.

"Since I have now received the nomination of the Democratic party for the position of Governor of the Commonwealth I feel that the request is reasonable," he said.

WILL BE ISSUE.

Prohibition will be the issue in November, Colonel Gaston asserted, not President Coolidge and his administration, both of whom have been interjected, the Democratic nominee charged, in an attempt to elect a Republican United States Senator and a Republican State ticket in Massachusetts.

"The question of how to control intoxication, how to better our deplorable condition in regard to intemperance, is the one absorbing question of the hour," said Colonel Gaston.

"The tariff, the conditions of our textile industry, the revival of business in Massachusetts, the violations of our primary system will be little discussed by the voter and will be of comparatively little importance to him now.

"How best can we solve the immediate crying evil, socially and economically of more importance than all other problems put together? The problem is a national one, of course, but it is one that affects the State and our cities and towns with no less force.

OF NATIONTL IMPORTANCE.

"The stand of Massachusetts as shown by the votes of Massachusetts citizens will be a referendum of consummate national importance and will prove of immense effect upon the citizens of other States and upon the maintenance or repeal of the present laws.

"A change in the liquor law does not mean the return of the barroom or saloon. Those evils have gone forever. They will never return. None will demand their return.

"The crying disgrace of the time, the paramount evil now, is the trade carried on by the bootlegger, and the consequent and inevitably consequent bribery and corruption of a multitude of officers of the nation, States and towns. The bootlegger is the parasite of prohibition.

"Those who agree with me, who desire temperance as much as the prohibitionists, believe that no law, no expenditure of money, no vast army of enforcement agents and shall discuss later."

army of enforcement agents and government officials, will ever be able to crush out the bootlegger and his unlawful trade.

AS ZEALOUS AS TEETOTALERS.

"We are just as zealous for the right and for better temperance conditions as, are the teetotalers. We do not disagree with them in their aims. We believe in the modification of our impotent liquor laws and resulting temperance and not in prohibition and intemperance.

"I believe I am accurate in stating that after many attempts in countries all over the world to legislate against intemperance and to enforce drastic laws against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, no country on earth today has a prohibition law similar to ours, with the exception of Finland.

"A license law under Government control as administered in Quebec and Sweden can be enforced, but no absolute prohibition law such as we have can be.

"A law held in contempt and universally violated breeds contempt for, and the violation of, other laws. I believe that a modification of the Volstead Act is imperative.

NEVER WERE WORSE.

"Every fair-minded person knows what the present state of the liquor situation is, and knows the conditions were never worse.

"The only argument that seems to me to be of importance in favor of Volsteadism is the claim that the wife and family of the working man have been better off since the birth of the Volstead law. When one realizes that wages since the World War have been increased two and three-fold, one can see whence the increased spending money has come. It has not come from the savings of drink money.

"We have eliminated the barroom; why not eliminate the bootlegger? A proper license law will do that.

"I have merely referred to the terrible evil of bribery and corruption due to the 18th Amendment.

"I have not spoken of the hypocrisy of the 'Dry' legislator or of the way in which the amendment to the Constitution was adopted, or of the cost of attempted enforcement, or of the revenue to be derived under a license law and its effect upon taxation, or of the invasion of the rights of the States and the undermining of the vital American principle of local self-government.

"These and similar questions I shall discuss later."

DOOLEY MAY STAY IN RACE; LEAVES VERDICT TO FRIENDS

The name of Harry I. Dooley undoubtedly will remain on the ballot as Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, Dooley declared today on arriving late at his office after an all-night session with Democratic leaders.

Although he sent to the State House for withdrawal papers, he said he feels the best interests of the Democratic Party will be served by his remaining on the ticket.

Not until 4:30 or 4:45 would he make a decision, however, he declared, and it would be guided by advice of friends during a conference at 2 p. m.

On the other hand, Chairman Charles H. McGlue of the Democratic State committee asserted that Dooley would withdraw.

"I believe that Dooley will pull out before the 5 o'clock time limit today," said McGlue confidently.

"I think this has all been a grandstand play on his part. He has been in the limelight since Tuesday and he feels pretty good as a result of it.

"Until he gets out, we won't do anything. If he gets out we will have four days in which to name a substitute and we can surely get a better candidate.

"And you may say that no one has requested my resignation and I have no intention, of resigning."

Dooley's declaration differed greatly from that of McGlue.

"I feel that if I withdrew the thousands of voters who gave me the honor I now have will become disgruntled to think that a small group of leaders have the power to take my name off the ballot and place some one else on it, and they might go over to the Republican side when they vote," he said.

"There is only one thing that I am interested in, and that is the election of David I. Walsh. I want to see my friend elected, and I feel that my name on the ballot will help toward that end.

"If, however, my friends convince me that my stand is wrong and I do withdraw, I will suggest (Dooley threw back his head and laughed) that Charles H. McGlue, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, take my place on the ballot."

"Why do you suggest McGlue?" Dooley was asked by the reporter.

"So he will join hands with the others not on the ticket, but among the Democratic leaders," Dooley returned with a grin.

Informed that McGlue has declared today that he will not step down as chairman, as Dooley suggested as a condition to his withdrawal, Dooley said:

"Then undoubtedly I will remain on the ticket. If I did step aside, however, my supporters would have opportunity to vote for me next time, either as a candidate for the same office or for Governor."

Political Notes

Next in interest to the Dooley-Ely-McGlue-Walsh-Gaston problem, and possibly of even greater importance if one has an eye on the second Tuesday of November, is the announcement by Dr. Wayne B. Wheeler that he is coming to Massachusetts next month for conferences with Dry leaders in this State and perhaps will deliver an address or two.

Wayne B. Wheeler, as everybody present must be well aware, is general counsel to the Anti-Saloon League. He calls former Senator Walsh a "wet" and Senator Butler a "dry," and "anticipates" that Mr. Walsh will declare for modification of the Volstead Act.

Of former Senator Walsh, Mr. Wheeler says: "His voice and vote have always been in the suds."

This is going to be no gloved campaign, fellow citizens, and now is the time to consider sending the sick, the aged and the very young into the hills of Northern New England while the fighting's going on.

The G. O. P. drum-beaters are making such noise about the "freak" nomination by the Democrats of a "candidate" for the lieutenant-governor nomination who had announced his withdrawal that they may not have found time to read the statement of Edmond Cote, prominent French Republican or Fall River, that he was unfairly beaten for the Republican nomination for the Governor's Council by Mark M. Duff of New Bedford.

Cote carried Duff's home city over the New Bedford leader by a plurality of 671. He carried Fall River by 1,302. But he lost in the district by 21,639 to 20,538., he says about 1 If there is any sulking in the tent being done hereabouts it is not the tent of Elijah Adlow, who, in the Republican attorney-general contest on Tuesday, trailed Arthur K. Reading by 24,765 votes. Harken to the words of a "regular":

> "Believing that Republican success and the triumphant election of United States Senator William M. Butler are far more important than any personal ambitions I may entertain, as always since I first entered political life I am ready to take off my coat and put my shoulder to the wheel to help achieve this result."

WORLD COURT OFFER TO U. S.

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 17 (A.P.)—M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann, the French and German foreign ministers, motored together outside Geneva today for lunch, after which a conversation is due to begin covering all the big problems between the two countries. The place of meeting was kept secret.

Geneva Switzerland, Sept. 17 (A.P.)—It is understood that, at the final meeting of the drafting committee of the World Court delegate conference today, it was agreed to recommend to the main committee of fourteen that the United States be granted a position of perfect equality with members of the League of Nations Council in all matters pertaining to requests for advisory opinions by the court.

Presumably this would not wholly meet the American wishes as expressed in the fifth reservation, in case advisory opinions could be asked by a majority vote of the council, because an American veto would not be effective.

The drafting committee will present its report to the full committee tomorrow.

David Hunter Miller, legal adviser to the American peace delegation, suggested that American reservations be accepted without condition for five years.

JAPANESE HURLS KNIFE AT AMBASSADOR'S SON

Tokyo, Sept. 17 (A.P.)—The foreign office today confirmed an incident that occurred at the British embassy, at which Ambassador Sir John Tilley was the luncheon host to Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf and Princess Louise of Sweden and other prominent persons.

When all the guests were seated at the table Roger Tilley, son of the ambassador, saw a Japanese gazing through a window. Tilley excused himself and went outside. The stranger fled, and, hurling a knife at Tilley who pursued him, escaped.

MEIGHEN CALLS CANADIAN CABINET; SOON TO RESIGN

Ottawa, Sept. 17 (A.P.)—Premier Arthur Meighen, who will resign next week, has called a Cabinet meeting for Monday to discuss the situation.

The Liberals, although they lack four votes in Parliament for a clear majority over all other parties, are looking to the Progressives and Liberal-Progressives to aid them in carrying on in Parliament with W. L. Mackenzie King as Premier.

BLACKJACK MAN GET $6,289

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (A.P.)—In full gaze of passengers on the deck of an arriving coastwise steamer, Clyde B. Falkenstein, paymaster for the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Company, was blackjacked by four masked men today and robbed of a bag containing $6,289.

Stunned by the blows of the blackjack the paymaster raced after the motor car in which the robbers escaped. With the paymaster was Thomas Fitzpatrick, who tripped in the excitement and was unable to follow.

The steamer Howard was drawing into a dock at the time and the passengers, as if from the balcony of a theatre, looked down upon the holdup.

They Like Moaning of Wind in Whiskers

Advocates of the lush growths and connoisseurs of whisker-culture sprang valiantly today to the defense of facial flora and fauna and pointed out that inasmuch as the threat of a barber's strike didn't worry them—well then, why should it worry anybody?

The boys back of the bulrushes came clean on the subject—that is as clean as they could come, considering that they are hiding behind a bushel, or if not quite a bushel, at least darn near a peck of the silky spinach.

For instance, former Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger, the cartoonists' delight, whispered through the foliage that once he had been called a beardless youth.

It was Alice Stone Blackwell, woman suffrage leader, who hurled the belittling designation when Dallinger was a pink-eyed youth in the Legislature. Since then he hasn't been visibly pink above the collar because he has been draped gracefully with whiskers.

WHAT COULD HE DO.

Street Commissioner Thomas J. Hurley also revealed a reason for his frontal appendage which is parted in the middle for the purpose of admitting nourishment.

When a youth his stubble was so black that he should have shaved at fifteen-minute intervals but never having mastered the technique of a razor, his wearied and fatigued barber suggested letting the alfalfa have an unchecked growth. It's still unchecked.

It was figured out today by Roger Babson, world champion statistician, that if his beard and all others of notables throughout the Bay State were placed end to end, measured in a straight line—why it would look like all-day parking place for the House of David.

EVER SEE COLEMAN?

Another notable beside Babson who muffles up the chin is former City Councillor George W. Coleman; another is former Attorney-General Henry A. Wyman, and still another is Charles E. Hughes, once Secretary of State and once again candidate for the G. O. P. presidential nomination.

But the most successful effort in whisker culture is that being made by George S. Ursh, gunner's mate on the U. S. S. Utah, now at the Boston Navy Yard.

Because Ursh failed to obey orders of the ship commander to shave before reaching Boston, he is forbidden to shave before it leaves again. That will be eighteen months, and already Ursh is styled "the ape" by his shipmates.

$20,000,000 IN MIDDLE WEST FLOOD LOSS

Twenty Persons Dead, Railroads and Farms Washed Out, in Six States

Chicago, Sept. 17.—(INS)—The most damaging flood in half a century was sweeping over vast areas of ten mid-western states today. Property loss thus far has been placed at upwards of $20,000,000, although an accurate estimate at this time is impossible. At least 20 persons are known to have lost their lives.

Rain continued falling today over much of the stricken area. Thousands of families have been driven from their homes and are seeking temporary refuge on higher ground. Whole counties of rich farm land are under water in some states, the crops laid waste.

Illinois, Indiana and Iowa are the hardest hit. Missouri, Wisconsin and Ohio are also suffering heavy damage.

Highways have been washed out and train service badly impaired over the stricken area. Motor traffic in the flooded sections of Illinois, Iowa and Indiana, has been practically abandoned.

Fear of disease as an aftermath of the flood was the chief concern of health authorities today. In some sections there is no water to drink save that of the swollen, muddy streams as water works and power houses in many towns have been put out of commission.

AIR MAIL FLIER IN 5,000-FT. LIFE LEAP

Plane Wrecked, but the Parachute Saves Man in Plunge; Delivers His Letters

Chicago, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—A fuel supply exhausted by hours of flying above a fog that conquered three other pilots forced Charles A. Lindbergh to abandon his St. Louis-Chicago air mail plane nearly a mile from Wedron, Ill., and drop by parachute.

Within an hour he had groped across country to where the wrecked plane lay two miles away, dug out the three pouches of mail and arranged their journey for the remaining sixty miles to their Chicago destination.

FORCED TO JUMP.

Lindbergh left his ship after cruising for more than two hours above the Chicago air mail terminal, from which powerful searchlights sought to pierce the fog. The drone of the motor was heard plainly by officials concerned over his delayed arrival.

The pilot, flying for the Robertson Aircraft Corporation of St. Louis, finally abandoned hope of finding the field, from which three other flyers turned back for forced landings in a wide arc, when his fuel supply began to run low. Circling westward, he had reached Ottawa before it was necessary to cut in the emergency gasoline tank.

UP 5,000 FEET.

He said the altimeter read 5,000 feet when he saw that the last drop of the emergency fuel was gone, and he realized he would have to "go over the side" for the third time in his experience. He was still hidden from the earth by fog.

Lindbergh dropped through the fog blanket, which he estimated at 1,000 feet in thickness, and landed without mishap, but during the early part of his descent he was in constant danger from the falling ship.

Wheeling about the pilot, the wings occasionally came within a few hundred feet of his body.

"RICHEST BABY'S" MOTHER TO ACCOMPANY HER SON

Newport, R. I., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—John Nicholas Brown, known during his younger days as "the richest baby in the world," will leave Harbour Court, where he will take an advanced course tending to a higher degree in the fine arts department. The course he is planning will take two years to complete, it was officially stated at the Brown residence today. Mrs. Nicholas Brown, his mother, is to accompany him.

Find Aged Woman Doctor

Chicago. Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Dr. Hanna Georgia Hutchins, eighty-two years old, noted woman physician and temperance worker, who disappeared from her home here, was found early today wandering on the North Side.

Mrs. Hall's Cold Look 'Froze' Slain Singer's Blood

Mrs. Mills Told Daughter of Scare She Suffered While on Picnic With Halls Day Before She Was Killed

(What simple events sometimes precede great tragedies! On the day before Mrs. Eleanor Mills and the Rev. Edward Hall were murdered on a lonely New Jersey farm they were on a merry little picnic together. Mrs. Hall was there, too. Perhaps she could not help but notice the attentions which her husband and Mrs. Mills paid to each other. What were her thoughts? What were her reactions?

Charlotte Mills, daughter of the slain woman, describes the events preceding the famous Hall-Mills murder, and she tells of the night when her mother left their drab little home, never to return alive. Here is the significant background of the tragedy, told by the one who knows them best.)

By CHARLOTTE MILLS.

Copyright, 1926, Famous Features Synd., Inc.

The frightful day that stands out from among the other days of my life like some horrible spectre grinning at me: September 14, 1922.

But let me go back a little, to the day before.

September 13 was lovely, warm and a little hazy. A fine day for a picnic, and that is what they had—a picnic. I didn't go, but mother went, of course. She went in one of the Hall automobiles, Mr. Hall drove.

Mother had gotten up early to make sandwiches to take along. She didn't feel very well, but thought the trip would do her good.

She had had a serious illness in February just seven months before, and been operated on at the hospital for kidney trouble. There was an abcess too, and the complications caused us terrible worry. Mother had never been quite so strong since that time.

But she was not one to fuss over herself. She hated bing sick and loathed staying in bed. She told the doctors she knew her own strength and promised not to overdo, and they told her she could gradually take up her old favorite sport of swimming. She used to go down to the beach with my aunts and uncles and sometimes with us youngsters and swim.

CHARLOTTE MILLS AS A BABY

She had two or three fainting spells that Summer, but always laughed at our fears about her, although I think once in a while she felt a little worried about herself, because her heart wasn't so awfully good.

When they got to the picnic grounds and mother tarted to walk up the hill with the others, she began to feel queer, and had that pain around her heart and a shortness of breath. She stopped a minute, but went on again, and when she got to the place where they were to spread the lunch, she looked so white and weak that Mr. Hall said he would fix a place for her to rest.

He went back and got some cushions out of the automobile and made a seat for her on the ground. She sort of laid down and he put the robe over her.

Just as she put her head back against the cushion, her eyes happened to catch Mrs. Hall's face as she stood in a clearing a short way off.

There was a terrible look on her face. Mother told me when she got home that night. "Charlotte," she said, "my blood just froze when I saw her eyes. I hope as long as I live I shall never see a human being look at me that way again."

REFUSED SANDWICH

Later on, at the picnic, when mother felt better and was helping pass around the things to eat, she offered Mr. Hall one of the sandwiches she had made. She knew it was the kind he liked best—tuna fish—and she had specially made it with him in mind.

Mrs. Hall looked at her very coldly and firmly said, "No, thank you, he won't care for it; we have brought plenty of sandwiches ourselves."

Mother told me that, too, when she got home, and seemed to feel it deeply. I said, "Oh, don't you care Moms, she's an iceberg anyhow. You know Mr. Hall would have loved that sandwich."

And she smiled. "Yes, Muggs, I [illegible] he would."

Well, next day I went to school as usual and came home around supper time. Mother was preparing supper.

It was a sort of stew of liver and kidney and things I hated. Mother had very little money for housekeeping. If she hadn't studied up and taught herself dietetics and how to use up leftovers and make nice dishes out of cheap cuts of meat, I don't know how we ever would have gotten along.

She used to cook lots of vegetables and fruits but we never had very much meat, or expensive cuts, and she always used every scrap to make stews or hash croquettes with potatoes.

Dan and I always fussed about eating the stews and hashes, but mother made us do it.

"Your father wants meat," she'd say, "and I have to get the kinds I can afford. It's plenty good enough for you children, and if you don't want to eat it, make your meal of other things. I can't cook special dishes for you. You must learn to like everything."

She would have loved to fix delicious things for us, but that was her German, thrifty way—to make us eat what was there, and be satisfied.

Well, on this particular Thursday afternoon, September 14, I remember how disgusted I felt when I saw the kidney stew for supper, and nothing else but a few pears. Had I known what was going to be my mother's fate that very night, I would have cut off my right hand rather than have been even the tiniest bit miffy.

She made some laughing remark and pinched my chin and told me to be a good girl and not be finicky, and maybe we'd "see about it later." I took it to mean we might have ice cream or something.

As I have written before, I was knitting a sweater, and when mother said she was going out I told her I'd go over to Aunt Joe's and have her show me how to turn the shoulder of the sweater.

"Oh, you wait for me, Kid," Mother said, and hurried out.

But I didn't. I went on over to my aunt's. I never saw my mother again, alive or dead......

Dan and I came home around ten or so. I was tired and went to bed. Father was in bed, too. It must have been somewhere near midnight when father came to my room and said, "Your mother isn't home yet, do you know where she went?" or something like that.

I was too sleepy to say much. I mumbled something, and father went away. I suppose he was worried, finding mother hadn't come in. I wasn't worried at all—not even the next morning when she still wasn't home. I had such confidence in mother.

Whatever she did, or didn't do, was all right with me. She knew what she was about and would always do the right and sensible thing. I supposed she had stayed over night with one of my aunts and that was all there was to it. I got breakfast and went off to school.

That afternoon I went for a canoe ride with some high school pals, and it wasn't till Dan came around that I recalled mother hadn't been home, and asked him if she had got back.

He said no, and looked kind of worried, and we went home together, and father looked worried, too, and I began to have a terrible feeling as if something must have happened. But nothing like what did happen ever crossed my mind.

Close as I was to mother and much as I loved her, not a shadow of presentiment came to me . . . And there they both were, lying dead in a thicket under a crabapple tree. Out there . . . My mother!

(Tomorrow: Charlotte Mills describes the terrible days following the discovery of the Hall-Mills murder and reveals vital events in connection with the tragedy.)

HARRY HOUDINI TO ADDRESS HUB POLICE

Harry Houdini, magacian, is going to give the Boston police a lecture. He is going to expose fortune tellers and mediums.

In a general order last night Police Commissioner Wilson directed that special officers and patrolmen assigned to such duty appear at the drill hall in Milk street station Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock to hear Houdini's lecture.

Mothers Look for the Quaker's picture when buying oats.

That means richer flavor

WHEN children say they don't like oats, it's usually because rich Quaker flavor is missing.

Children who ordinarily don't take to oats are often quickly won to this important food, simply by giving them "Quaker."

The flavor is uniquely different; toasty, rich and creamy, Quaker Oats alone has it. Some 30 years were spent in perfecting it.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Thus protein, carbohydrates and vitamines and "bulk" combine in making Quaker Oats an excellently balanced ration.

Get Quick Quaker (cooks in 3 to 5 minutes) or Quaker Oats today at your grocer.

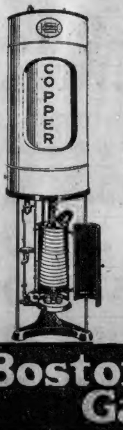
WHY wait to heat water every time you want it? With a Kompak you can have hot water always on tap. Replace your present hot water equipment with a more convenient method of obtaining the hot water comfort you have always wanted.

Come in and let us demonstrate a KOMPAK to you—now—while our special September Home Comfort Opportunity is in effect.



The KOMPAK AUTOMATIC STORAGE GAS WATER HEATER provides a continuous supply of clean hot water, economically heated and automatically replenished—always in advance of your needs.

IT IS ABSOLUTELY AUTOMATIC. A valve controlled by the temperature of the water turns the fuel "on" or "off," according as heat is needed to maintain a tank full of hot water.

IT IS ECONOMICAL. On the principle that it is less expensive to keep hot water than to heat cold water, the KOMPAK is more economical, service considered, than any other.

Our Special September Offer

allows you to try the KOMPAK system in your own home for 30 days without cost or obligation. Don't wait any longer! Call at any of our offices or

Movies Stars on Way to Fight, Pick Jack

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

ON BOARD CALIFORNIA LIMITED, SAN BERNARDINO, CAL., Sept. 17.—They tell me "I ain't seen nothing" until I watch Dempsey and Tunney do their stuff next Thursday in Philadelphia.

If a prizefight is any more strenuous than the scenes at the Santa Fe station in Los Angeles when we left, I had better make reservations for a rest cure right now.

There were so many traveling tourists who wanted to shake hands with Patsy Ruth Miller, Helen Ferguson, Bill Russell, Carmel Myers and Robert Vignola that we all nearly missed the train.

Patsy Ruth Miller

No one had a moment to do such a practical thing as count luggage. Billie Dove, Bess Meredith and Kathleen Key insisted that the train must not pull out until Colleen Moore and her husband, John McCormick, arrived. But even Billie's persuasive voice failed to make an difference in the train schedule.

It left the station on time without John and Colleen. A telegram announcing they were following today and that work had delayed Colleen at the last minute ended my search of the cars for them.

All conversation on who will win the fight somewhat perplexed the porter who listened with big eyes at the bet Patsy Ruth Miller made with her father, and the one Helen Ferguson has with Bill Russell

The movie people seem to feel that Dempsey hasn't a chance of losing. I don't know whether they are basing their hopes on Dempsey because his wife, Estelle Taylor, belongs to the movie colony, or because they really believe that Dempsey is the better man.

Tunney, who is a likable chap, made many friends during his stay in Hollywood. I have been asked to deliver messages to both Dempsey and Tunney by their friends and admirers.

One of the most important of these messages is a letter Estelle Taylor sent to me asking that I see that it be given to her husband just before he goes into the ring.

She said it expressed reassurance that she knew he would win, but she felt she could be sure of his receiving it if it were put into his hands by someone she knows.

Quick Quizzes on the Movies

By BARBARA BENTON

L. F. D., BOSTON—"The Last Laugh" and "Variety" were German made films. And the best of such importations. So good, in fact, that the domestic product is so far in the shade as to be in total eclipse. However, it does not necessarily follow that Hollywood is going to abdicate in favor of Berlin or Moscow—here, as Doug Fairbanks says, the very best movies are made. Murnau, perhaps the greatest of the German directors, is reported as saying that the average program thriller shown in his country is infinitely poorer than the worst of ours. It is averages that count. Nobody gets a home run every time up.

E. L. W., NEWTON—Patsy Ruth Miller has been sick. The nemesis of all hard-working filmsters has overtaken her and there is nothing now but complete rest before she faces the camera again.

P. A. V., ROXBURY—The foreign films again! "Mady Christians of "The Waltz Dream" is the player you have in mind. Xenia Desni was the blonde. These are all German players, but Miss Christians has appeared in this country on the stage, I think, about eight years ago. Her father did some picture directing over here, too, and she helped out with that.

L. K. H., BROOKLINE—Ernest Torrence is now making what you might call a "bold departure" in playing a very serious role, namely that of "St. Peter" in the forthcoming De Mille spectacle, "The King of Kings."

Millions now perspire without odor

It is so easy and sure, how can anyone help trying this pleasant way?

HOW often we have been embarrassed, or have offended others by not realizing that perspiration caused odor! Now, all that can be avoided so simply and refreshingly, with such genuine benefit to health, that no wonder Lifebuoy has become the most widely used toilet soap in the world.

All day, now, in filmy dresses or airy linen, active bodies can perspire with perfect assurance of lasting sweetness of skin. The amazing, antiseptic cleanness resulting from a Lifebuoy bath doesn't hide odor—it removes the cause.

It protects health, too

The delightful feeling of freshness following a Lifebuoy bath is all the proof you'll ask for that Lifebuoy has removed from your skin dirt and germs that spread disease. You just know that cleanness so antiseptic, so convincing, must mean protection.

Its very scent is proof

Don't compare Lifebuoy to other kinds—mere prettily tinted toilet soaps. Lifebuoy is a soap to be taken seriously—not sentimentally. Its purpose is hygienic. Your liking for it will grow from its amazing power to cleanse, its benefits to your skin, its instant lather of creamy suds. Above all, you will become fond of its honest, antiseptic scent that disappears with the rinsing, leaving only a delightful suggestion of absolute cleanness. It's what makes Lifebuoy so truly different—the sure proof of a new kind of cleansing action essential to health and assuring lasting daintiness.

Extremely economical

And all this added protection costs you nothing extra—it's free. Lifebuoy costs no more—probably less—than the soap you are now using.

Get Lifebuoy today. You'll know it by the red box and the cake—orange-red, the color of its pure palm-fruit oil.

SEN. BUTLER TO VISIT MRS. ROGERS' HOME

Lowell, Sept. 17.—United States Senator William M. Butler will be the guest of Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers here this evening.

His visit to Lowell will include an informal reception. He will receive visitors at the office of Mrs. Rogers between 4 and 6 p. m., and will also confer with local Republican leaders.

FULLER NAMES OCTOBER 3 FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Governor Fuller, in a proclamation issued today, set apart the seven-day period beginning October 3 as Fire Prevention Week.

The loss of twenty-nine lives and more than $500,000 of property in 1925, despite the fact that it represents a decrease over the 1923-1924 record, the Governor declares, is a greater economic burden than the people of the State should be called upon to bear.

"Determined efforts on the part of the public individually and collectively will greatly reduce this destruction," he said.

MAN OFFERS $5,000 BILL FOR GLASS OF CIDER

New Britain, Ct., Sept. 17 (A.P.)—Handing the proprietor a $5,000 bill, a stranger asked Joseph Lazarro for a glass of cider. When Mr. Lazarro recovered he politely explained he could not change the bill. "This can't be much of a town," was the stranger's parting remark. Skeptical persons who doubted the bill was genuine found upon inquiry it had been issued on the Federal Trust Company.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Willowdale Race Meet to Be Held on Palmer Estate, Topsfield, Oct. 23

THE WILLOWDALE RACE MEET ON October 23, an Autumn fixture of great society-sport importance staged at Bradley Palmer's extensive Topsfield estate, is this year confined to afternoon hours, commencing at two-thirty of the clock and ending sometime around sundown.

AN INNOVATION in the highly interesting race card is a subscription horses contest, specially attracting attention from Eastern Horse Club members and including the steeplechasers imported from England last Autumn and alloted by drawing.

OWNERS OF THE ENGLISH thoroughbreds are a socially important set, headliners in Boston's smartdom, such as Miss Mary Weld, Miss Eleanora Sears, Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson, Edwin S. Webster, Jr., Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Reginald Bird, among others.

THIS SUBSCRIPTION race supplants on the card the race for the National Hunt Cup, but otherwise all the usual Willowdale events are down. There is the race for the Willowdale Cup, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D. Ahl.

ALSO MR. AND MRS. CHARLES G. RICE'S trophy, the Turner Hill Cup, the Myopia Challenge Cup and the New England Hunts team cup. It's truly a spirited spectacle and all the tried and true sportsmen and women of the region will be out.

SUCH WELL KNOWN stables as the Ledyard Farm, John R. Macomber, Augustus F. Goodwin, Bayard Warren, Bayard Tuckerman, John S. Lawrence, James W. Appleton, William Almy, Jr., and Albert C. Burrage are represented.

MISS MARY WELD
Boston girl goes northward to Toronto, to watch her three-year-old "Endless" perform at the Woodbine race meet.

BOTH FLAT RACING and steeplechasing will thrill the spectators, specially the New England Hunts race for hunt teams of three riders each, a pretty sight in the rolling countryside of Topsfield.

AS WINDUP, immediately after the last race is run, there'll probably be a meet for Myopia Drag Hounds, with all the horsey set speeding over that superb hunting country, where enormous estates join one another for mile on mile.

THE SOUND of the hunter's horn rolls over various fine hunting counties these fine September days. Norfolk hounds and hunters are up with the birds for a cross country run in natural hunting country.

ALTERNATING WITH the meetings at sun-up there's now and then an afternoon run. Yesterday hunters and hounds gathered at Mrs. Danielson's Medfield Farm to while away late afternoon in this finest of sports.

NEXT WEEK THERE'S a hunt at Norfolk Hunt Club House, following an afternoon run and later on comes the Norfolk Hunt Horse Show, an interesting event put on by that set specially for the farmers over whose lands they hunt.

HOMECOMING on the newly furbished and handsomely redecorated Rochambeau are Mrs. Guy H. Lee and Miss Jeanne Marie Lee, docking today in New York. The Lee home is West Riding, in Wellesley. Also on the Rochambeau is Professor Andre de Beauvivier, a former Captain in the French cavalry.

THE ROCHAMBEAU also brings Miss Elinor V. Hollis and Miss Carolyn Hollis, daughters of Professor Ira N. Hollis. The Misses Hollis, putting in much of the Summer in Switzerland, went over in the Spring in the party of Rear Admiral McElroy and the Admiral's sister.

MISS MARCIA HOPKINS is homeward bound on the steamship Berengaria, a trans-Atlantic giant docking today in New York. Miss Hopkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hopkins, and before and since her debut, spends a portion of each year abroad.

Betty Alden

BOSTON FOLK BACK FROM EUROPE

New Englanders on the steamship Rochambeau of the French Line disembark today in New York. The Rev. Henry B. Washburn and Mrs. Washburn of Worcester with Henry B. Washburn, Jr., and Sherwood L. Washburn are aboard.

George B. Fernald of the faculty at St. Mark's, Mr. and Mrs. H. Monmouth Smith of Brookline, George Blake Johnson of Nahant and Robert E. Sumner of Boston are passengers on the Rochambeau. Also Mrs. E. G. Bigelow of Forest street, Medford.

Mrs. Lester G. Bruggeman, with Master Amurice V. Bruggeman and Master Lester G. Bruggeman, Jr., come home on the French Line steamer.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL ON WAY HOME BY AUTO

Washington, Sept. 17.—Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, who has been in Washington since Sunday in attendance at the annual meeting of the Roman Catholic hierarchy at Catholic University, left for Boston by automobile.

He was accompanied by Mgr. Richard Haberlin, his secretary. Other Catholic prelates from New England, who have been in attendance at the conference included Bishops Feehan of Fall River, Murray of Portland, Hickey of Providence and McAuliffe of Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Chickering with their son, John Chickering, Jr., have been in New York, guests at the Hotel Roosevelt.

BOSTON BAPTISTS VOTE TO CALL TEXAS PASTOR

Members of the First Baptist Church of Boston, at a special meeting voted by an overwhelming majority to call the Rev. Harold Major, pastor of the Galveston Avenue Baptist Church of Dallas, Texas, to the pastorate in Boston.

If Dr. Major accepts, this action relieves the pastorial problem that has confronted the church for some time. Dr. Major, born in Brooklyn, N. Y., May 12, 1887, was ten years in the banking business before entering the ministry. He attended the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., and received his doctor of divinity degree at Carson-Newman College, Tennessee, in 1917. He is married and the father of three children.

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Boston Druggists Make This Offer

Money Back If One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used

At last the way has been found to combine Pepsin with other corrective stomach agents so that it will do the most good in the shortest possible time.

Why bother with slow actors when one tablespoonful of this splendid and pleasant liquid remedy will cause gas, bloating, heaviness, heartburn or any upset condition of the stomach to speedily vanish.

And why should any man or woman suffer another hour with indigestion or any stomach misery when the remedy that acts almost instantly can be easily procured?

But there is more to say about this remarkable remedy—something that will interest thousands of despondent people.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin not only quickly relieves stomach distress but it also conquers stubborn indigestion, dyspepsia and gastritis, and puts an end to dizziness, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness and despondency which distressing troubles are nearly always caused by chronic stomach disturbance.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin is pleasant to take, has a delightfully refreshing taste and after it has put your stomach in a clean and healthy condition, just notice how much better you look and feel, for besides correcting stomach disorders this supremely good remedy that druggists everywhere guarantee, is a fine tonic that builds you up and makes you work with vim, eat with relish and sleep soundly.

MELORIPE BANANAS

ASK at your grocery or fruit store for the new Meloripe box, containing 12 Crown size Meloripe bananas. You now have your choice of three sizes of this delicious fruit:

Royal — the largest, packed 6 in a box
Queen — not quite so large, 6 in a box
— and now the new box of 12 Crown size

The Crown size is an average-sized banana, just right for children's appetites, for the hungry feeling between meals, or for a single dish of bananas and cream. You get 12 of this size, for very little more than you pay for 6 of the larger sizes.

The quality of the fruit is exactly the same; only the size is different. Every banana in every Meloripe box is a perfect banana, selected from the finest grown, and slowly, thoroughly ripened before it is packed and delivered to your dealer.

Because of the careful attention given to their ripening, Meloripe bananas are highly nutritious and easily digested. They are an ideal food. And their luscious flavor makes them a delicacy which is always new and always welcome.

THEATRE TO CLOSE FOR HOLY DAY

Rarely do religious scruples prevent a theatrical performance, but the unusual applies to the presentations of "The Jazz Singer" with George Jessel as the star. The [illegible] will be dark tonight and tomorrow afternoon, because of the resolve of Mr. Jessel to refrain from playing those two performances. His reason for this is expressed in his statement:

"I do not want to pose as religious or resorting to subterfuge to cloud a proposed action. I openly state that, like most of the youth of my race, I am very broad-minded regarding my religion and its teachings. But there is the respect I owe to my mother and the [illegible] to our play, 'The Jazz Singer.' The play's theme is invested with the spirit of the Day of Atonement so completely, and the action of its central character, a Cantor's son who makes his great sacrifice in tribute to the spirit of the holy day, that it would smack of the sacrilegious to play on this most solemn day of Judaism."

Pleasant surroundings count. If you are not satisfied with your room there's a suitable one listed for you in today's Classified Columns. Classification 90

INSTALLMENT BUYING IS NOT REAL MENACE

By FRANK W. PRESCOTT
Advertising and Sales Counsellor

Frank W. Prescott

"The man in the street" is probably the world's worst economist, but he knows what he wants, and he is getting it. He will continue to get it regardless of what financiers and economists predict or fear.

Fundamentally there is reason for concern about the present and growing volume of installment buying, thus far as the manufacturer and retailer are involved. If they alone were concerned in the situation it would be truly alarming. But they are not. The biggest factor is the American public and the insistence of that public that it be satisfied.

Unwise extension of credits, and production in excess of sales possibilities because of undue optimism on installment sales can spell ruin for any manufacturer or retailer. But it cannot do so any more than the same errors made for other reasons. If there is trouble ahead from installment business it is trouble from production and sales reasons and not because of the consumer and his habits of practices on installment buying.

It is not so long since buying "on the installment plan" was in bad order not only among merchants of respectability but among the various classes of buyers. It just "wasn't being done" except by persons whose circumstances made cash payment impossible and who did their buying "on time" from sheer necessity. Today "payments out of income," "budgeted expenditures," "home furnishing clubs," have cloaked with respectability the time payment practices which a generation ago were considered reprehensible. And out of the respectability which has come to such manner of buying has come a volume of business which otherwise might never have been obtained.

It may be well argued, and it may be true that many purchases made on installments are for luxuries that are often beyond the capacity of the buyer to acquire economically. On the other hand, there is no denying the fact that many an automobile is giving pleasure and health to persons who could not have bought for cash.

Economists agree that the ideal state of human progress is one in which each individual, through education and enlarged opportunities, is able to enjoy recreation, comforts and luxuries to an increasingly greater degree. Even this most practical of sciences takes thoroughly into consideration the definite benefit to any community in the elevation of standards of living through the enjoyment by the population of advantages in succeeding generations greater than those of their predecessors. To this end, installment buying has contributed materially.

CAMBRIDGE GIRL GETS PRIZE IN ACCOUNTANCY

Mary E. Wilcox of Cambridge, a graduate of the College of Business Administration of Boston University in 1924, has been awarded the Elijah J. Sells prize of $50 for accountancy, the first woman in the country to get such an award, Dean Everett W. Lord announced today.

Miss Wilcox successfully passed the state examination for certified public accountant ranking among the first ten. She is one of the few women holding a C P A rating in Massachusetts.

MILADY TURNS TO BLACK FOR FALL GOWNS

By SONIA LEE.
(I N S. Staff Correspondent.)

New York, Sept. 17.—Backless evening gowns and skirtless afternoon frocks.

A reversion to black.

A continuance of matching accessories.

These were the predictions today of designers along Garment Row and of caterers to woman's fancy.

Specifically, styles vary little from those of the past season. The skirts are still fourteen inches from the floor or shorter, legs permitting. The silhouette is slim, tailored and compact.

Frills and furbelows, while attempted, are finding but little favor in feminine eyes. Pleats are used either in front or back or at the sides of the skirt.

Collars which have displayed a tendency to be high have again dropped and the deep V neck, with a flower at its side, is favored.

For afternoon wear, green of the hotter shades, deep purple shades, and the wood tints are popular. However, the very smart woman, again, as in the war days, chooses black from top to toe, with the exception of her hose, which are of sunburnt tints.

Colors have palled on the lady of fashion, and she is reverting to the sombre but very chic black. Materials are velvets, twills and a predominance of silks.

Little of the reptile leathers are being used in shoes. The smooth leathers and the patents again are in vogue.

Hats will be in felts and velours, [illegible] two-toned, and of high, [illegible] crowns.

Electrical People Plan National Organization

By B. C. FORBES

INDUSTRIES, cities, communities, corporations, merchants, take notice

If [illegible] from one of the [illegible] and prosperous industries in the country; albeit one of the newest.

THE ELECTRIC people are to combine forces all over the country and launch an education [illegible] trust this with the effortless conduct of New England cotton manufac[illegible]. Or with the [illegible] industry [illegible] do is [illegible] of [illegible] people and others have gone ahead and commanded profitable recognition.

B. C. Forbes.

But the electrical people are to go about things on a scale never [illegible] munity.

All the electrical interest in the land, from manufacturers and central stations to the smallest dealer, and even department stores handling [illegible] under a central national organization [illegible] and under State and local bodies for local operations. Here, briefly, is the program:

Some 250 men foremost in the industry recently got together and adopted a five-year national plan for co-operative market development, to bring home [illegible] electricity is a better way of living."

To carry out this plan, which was prepared by the Society for Electrical Development, a continental organization is being formed with the society at its head and 400 or more electrical leagues as local chapters.

For the first time, manufacturers, the central station power companies, wholesalers, retailers, electrical contractors, etc., are co-operating to [illegible] directions. Dr. Louise Stanley, director of the Bureau of Home Economics in the Department of Agriculture at Washington, describes [illegible] the only floor-saving device is an extra water bucket, so that the [illegible] makes one trip instead [illegible] will be provided for [illegible] by the society and [illegible] each operating with the freedom a [illegible] ment.

The plan provides for an inter[illegible] representation, each chapter being almost a replica of the Society. The [illegible] tional unit of its own. So, also locally.

ONE innovation is the linking of non-electrical retail distributors, such as department stores which it may surprise you to know, sell about half the country's electrical appliances. The stores will benefit from the co-operative work. They will be included in local chapters along with the local power com[illegible] wire houses and sell fixtures and dealers of the region.

The finances come from special funds set up by groups of manufacturers to support certain products, and from the [illegible] both national and local, divided on a 50-50 basis.

THUS will be harnessed the [illegible] and the best local brains for the benefit of all. And the public, we are assured, will benefit through lower prices made possible by [illegible] tly increased [illegible]

Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company operates 7,715 miles of railroad [illegible] extending from Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis and Memphis southward to the Gulf of Mexico with connections [illegible] over the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railroad, which is jointly controlled by the Louisville & Nashville and the Southern Railway systems.

Incidentally, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad is controlled by the Atlantic Coast Line through majority stock [illegible]

The [illegible] has [illegible] the whole, an [illegible] ord [illegible] revenue [illegible] creased [illegible] crease [illegible] ficiency caused the gross income to more than [illegible] 1925.

While [illegible] creased [illegible] did not advance as rapidly. The railroad has paid dividends in every year since 1899 at rates ranging for 3½ per cent to [illegible] paid in all [illegible] capital [illegible] stock dividends [illegible] the last being one of 62½ per cent in 1923.

Gross and net income last year were the largest in the company's history since $15.98 was earned on the capital stock, [illegible] $12.08 per share, earned in 1924

NEW BUILDING FOR PAST WEEK IS GREATER

New York, Sept. 17—Engineering construction contracts let in the United States in the past week were [illegible] in the preceding week, Engineering News-Record reports. Of the total for the week $3,618,000 will go into private operations and $[illegible]307,000 into public jobs. Minimum costs observed in arriving at these totals are $150,000 on commercial, residential, educational and other buildings, $40,000 on industrial [illegible] plants and extensions, and $15,000 on road improvements.

The total value of engineering construction jobs for which contracts have actually been let continues well ahead of last year. The total involved from January 1 to date, for [illegible] the corresponding period last year.

In the market for construction ma[illegible] [illegible] prices, for the most part, are [illegible] to the [illegible] outlook [illegible] struction industry is distinctly promising.

BOSTON TRADE IS BETTER

[illegible] Review in this week's issue will say [illegible] trade conditions in Boston. There appears to be a feeling [illegible] trade that conditions are [illegible] volume of sales maintained [illegible] some of the [illegible] that [illegible] will be [illegible] of increased buying [illegible] prices are rising [illegible] Owing to a more [illegible] in foreign markets large quantities of wool [illegible] Very [illegible] the goods markets and in some lines the mills are being pressed for quick delivery.

"Sales of cotton goods have picked up considerably and, although conditions are not so good as could be desired, some mills have orders sufficient to last to the end of the year, and others are coming into production or increasing their time schedules."

SO. CALIFORNIA GAS TO INCREASE CAPITAL

New York, Sept. 17 (A P)—Stockholders of Southern California Gas Company will vote November 18 on a proposed increase in authorized capital stock from $10,000,000 to $100,000,000 and reduce the par value from $100 to $25 a share. It will be divided into $60,000,000 preferred and $40,000,000 common stock. A proposal to increase the funded debt to $75,000,000 also will be submitted.

New York Curb

New York Curb prices were firm: Central Aguirre Sug 82 up ½; [illegible] 26½, off ½; Glen Alden [illegible] 13, [illegible]; Fox Theatres [illegible] up ¼.

AUTO OUTPUT NEAR CAPACITY

Production of motor cars continues at or near capacity for a large proportion of the factories. Deliveries at retail are speeding up as orders placed earlier for new models are being filled by the dealers. Generally speaking, it is one of the best fall markets the industry has seen, with all price classes participating, says Automotive Industries.

The belief is held that the current rate of activity will be maintained at least until Oct. 1, when both production and sales are expected to begin to taper off. It is pointed out that with the [illegible] of models now produced by the leading manufacturers, the introduction of a new [illegible] signal for a substantial [illegible] production merely to give [illegible] a complete stock. But [illegible] of retail demand.

At about the time of the introduction of the new cars this summer dealers' stocks of used cars were also at a low point—the lowest of the year, if not in recent years. But the jump in new car business has been [illegible]

Truck production and sales have not shown anything like the gains in the last few weeks that motor cars have but the level of output for both classes is apparently enough to insure that 1926 will better 1925 in this respect. August production of cars and trucks was well over the 400,000 mark and September should be at least as high. The possibility of a very heavy slump in the last quarter is still present, but not taken at all seriously.

COPPER BUYING SMALL AT HOME AND ABROAD

New York, Sept. 17.—Copper buying remains small here and abroad. Second hands, custom smelters and one large producer continue to offer metal at 14.30 cents delivered, but producers, with this exception, are at 14⅜ cents delivered. REGULATION OF BUSES BY U. S. IS PROBLEM

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

Regulation of buses engaged in interstate commerce promises a problem for Congress at the nearing session. Considerable opposition to such regulation was displayed at the hearing before Commissioner J. J. Esch in Boston lately. Com[illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] road was losing $1,000,000 a year as a result of bus competition. Of course, the nature of the regulatory legislation proposed is going to determine just how much opposition it will meet. Naturally everyone would like to have regulation of the sort to benefit his own business.

Often you hear it said that business men, if active, cannot lay aside the harness and live long. The cases of a Worcester corset manufacturer, a shoe machinery manufacturer and of a leading figure in the woolen [illegible] substantiation of the claim. All three cases mentioned were exceptions. Why not cite an example once in a while of a man who has seized the opportunity to enjoy life after successful achievements in the business world? Most recently we have that of William E. Lyford, who has passed away within the week. Mr. Lyford retired as vice-president and general manager of the great Bigelow Hartford Carpet Company back in 1918. Charles F. Folsom of Dorchester, after many years of activity at City Hall, died last week at 71, after outliving his retirement by seven years. There are many others who might be added to the list.

When we "led" this column this week with the statement there would probably be no increase in the rediscount rate yesterday, we were merely drawing logical conclusions from fundamental conditions in the money market. That we were right merely shows that logic is sometimes to be depended upon, even in a stock market matter.

Warning Sounded on False Reports About World War

By GEORGE W. HINMAN

Chicago, Sept. 17.

THERE is a costly, foolish, pernicious fiction on earth today. It is the fiction that the great war was America's war and that America put money into the war because she was unprepared to put soldiers in the field, and that, therefore, America should not be repaid any of this money—not even the ten billions which she lent to the warring powers of Europe.

Geo. W. Hinman

Yet this fiction is spread all over Europe, is being [illegible] today by many Americans and recently has been declared [illegible] a publicist of national size, by a former statesman, by a preacher of Continental reputation, and by a host of newspaper correspondents.

If such a fiction were to prevail, in the present campaign for cancellation of the war debts, the consequences would reach into every home and [illegible] in the United States; would cost in income taxes a billion a year for many years, and would multiply hardships in the days of declining prosperity beyond present calculation.

WHY then should not the fiction prevail? Because it is only a fiction. Why should it be exposed as often as presented? Because, though only a fiction, it is pressed home so vigorously and frequently just now that it is converting thousands of Americans to utterly false views of a grave American problem. The facts, if faced, are plain and unmistakable.

Why was the war England's war from the beginning? Because England dared not let Germany take Antwerp and the Channel ports and from these ports hold a gun at her head, because England dared not let Germany and Austria dominate Constantinople, lord it over the Eastern Mediterranean and so control the Suez Canal route to India; because England hungered after [illegible] and more square miles of German colonies; because England desired the destruction of Germany's shipping that competed with hers at sea.

Why was the war France's war from the beginning? Because France was bound to repel German invasion, because France was determined to keep her soil safe from the conqueror, because France aimed to tear Alsace-Lorraine away from her enemy and make it again a part of France; because France, too, hungered after more territory and was ambitious to annex the 400,000 square miles of new lands which eventually fell to her lot.

WAS the United States threatened with German guns at channel ports or menaced in the East Mediterranean and the Suez Canal? Was the United States eager to abolish the German merchant marine or annex German colonies?

Was the United States threatened with invasion? Was the United States seeking to recover from Germany any Alsace or any Lorraine? Was the United States looking for any billion square miles or half billion square miles of another nation's colonies?

Was the United States a party to any of the war agreements by which, before this country entered [illegible] France and England as well as Italy and Japan, had made the war their very own and set their seal upon it by contracting for the division of the spoils among them in case of victory?

No! [illegible] Not a [illegible] man dare [illegible] else than "No" when the questions are put thus definitely. It is only when the definite facts and issues are hidden in a fogbank of vague sentimentalism that any person in his senses dare dispute the plain record of war history.

WITH Europe's war as such from the beginning, the United States had nothing to do—nothing to do with its motives or objects or contracts for the division of the spoils. That is why the United States did not enter the war until especially provoked by Germany, and then only as an "associate" and not as an "ally."

The idea then that America really owed the Allies the ten billions which she lent them, that she was merely paying them for fighting her battles before she could take the field herself, that therefore Europe's debt to the United States Government is no debt at all—this idea is pure moonshine, mirage, camouflage and false pretense.

If the idea were true, half the world would owe France and England money for coming late into the war or for not sending armies to France after they came in. The whole proposition is ridiculous.

THAT is the reason for this article. The issue is old, but the propaganda is fresh every day. False as it is, this propaganda demands attention, lest, with all its dire consequences, it somehow may prevail.

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

SOPRANOS WIN QUEST TRYOUT

A trio of soprano, mezzo, lyric and, what is termed in stage parlance, "cry baby," plus an extraordinary whistler and a clever pianist are the Talent Quest's addition to the program at Loew's State Theatre today.

The performers are Lucille C. Cogswell of Waltham, mezzo; Frances Kelley, South Boston, "cry baby," Josephine Krebs, Roxbury, lyric, Joseph Fried, No. 32 Porter street, Lynn, whistler and William Paull, No. 177 Mt. Vernon street, Lowell, pianist.

Tomorrow's Talent Quest program is equally entertaining, including Ella Sinnott, youthful Malden soprano; Pauline Machie of Brookline, a rich mezzo, Daniel F. Sullivan, No 32 Varnum street, Lowell, tenor robusto, S. H. Glaser and B J Oberfenbauer of Chelsea, a pair of youngsters in clever piano and violin duets and Arnold B. Stephenson, of No. 219 High street, Portland, Me. The latter plays a saw to organ accompaniment an entertainment novelty he perfected by four years practice

Preliminary tryouts continue this week and next from 12.30 to 1.30 noon and from 8 to 8.30 o'clock evening.

The awards number ten including ten week engagements for two winners at $150 per week, each on the big Loew vaudeville circuit; a $0 Chrysler coupe and seven valuable radio sets.

MUSIC FROM SAW

Arnold B. Stephenson, of No. 219 High street, Portland, Me., with his "saw with the human voice." He spent four years perfecting tone effects that he draws from a hack-saw to an organ accompaniment.

TONE CONTROL 'BALLOON TIRE'

The Sprague tone control, known as the "Balloon Tire of Radio," contains a high capacity variable condenser of new design, with a capacity range of 0 to .032 microfarads which allows careful "matching" of set to speaker. With the pointer in between the arrows and over the small diamond on the cover, the capacity is entirely cut out, and the set operates as if the tone control were not connected at all.

With the pointer turned 180 degrees the maximum capacity is cut in. Place the pointer in this zero position, and connect the tone control in between set and speaker as shown on back of carton. Turn the pointer slowly to the right or left until the best tone quality is obtained. The capacity progression when turning to the right is different than when turning to the left.

RADIO TO AID IN CHICAGO SCHOOL WORK

There is no longer any argument about the educational value of radio in public schools. All doubt and speculation as far as Chicago is concerned are swept aside with the announcement that station WMAQ will officially co-operate in furnishing instruction for half hour periods three times each week to school children.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE IT MAKES!

What a difference the Sprague Tone Control makes in tone quality! It takes the "bumps" out of reception. You know how well your set and speaker act with a rich voice or violin music. But it isn't so pleasant when a medley of tones come in at once, as they do in orchestra and band music.

The Sprague Tone Control matches the set to the speaker so that tone quality is vastly improved. This is easily noticed with a number of voices or instruments broadcasting on a single program.

You'll find [illegible] to last longer with the Tone Control. They'll be [illegible], whereas [illegible] throw them out. Tubes, too, are useful for a longer period. The Sprague Tone Control is carefully made of waterproof construction, good for a long useful life. At your radio dealer's, or write

The WENTWORTH By-the-Sea, Portsmouth, N. H.

Did You Ever Drive Up Here?

ONE of the finest of New England's shore resorts, as thousands know, is THE WENTWORTH. It is located in a private park of 125 acres on an island in the harbor of Portsmouth, N.H. On this island, in 1669, Samuel Wentworth opened the first inn in this section. Here occurred the first overt act of the American Revolution.

This splendid hotel became world famous when the Russo-Japanese Peace Treaty was signed here at the instigation of President Roosevelt. Now hundreds of people find here their ideal summer playground.

Driving up in the morning to this porte-cochere is something one never forgets. Every outlook breathes a welcome. Breakfast is ready—and such a breakfast. The coffee they serve here is La Touraine. Thousands of people from all over the country have here first gained their introduction to this exquisite coffee.

When you can't be at THE WENTWORTH you can still enjoy its coffee. All the year around you can serve it on your table if you will. It will bring you delights your home never can know till you do this. You have never tasted a coffee blend to compare with La Touraine (Extra).

Interesting facts about La Touraine (Extra) Coffee

It is the largest-selling coffee in New England, the birthplace of fine coffees in America. In this home of exacting coffee critics, it is considered the supreme result of 237 years of coffee development.

It is the coffee served in many dining places famous for their coffees. In all Statler Hotels, for instance. In the magnificent Shoreland of Chicago. In countless country homes which study fine hospitality.

The blend combines the four finest coffees that grow. Each comes from a different country, each is the pride of a nation. Each derives its excellent flavor from one of the rarest soils of the earth.

Three of the coffees combined in this blend cost 50% more than ordinary coffee, and 25% more than San Paulo, the prize coffee of Brazil. One is so rare that only 30,000 bags are grown yearly.

The formula for this blend is a secret, carefully preserved. Coffee experts spent twenty years in perfecting it. No other blend has been made to resemble it. Those who find here their ideal flavor can find it nowhere else.

Mr. E. J. Butler, the noted coffee expert, personally tests, tastes and selects all coffees used in this blend. His duty is to maintain, without regard to cost, this premier coffee flavor. He pays any price necessary to combine in La Touraine (Extra) the maximum delights.

La Touraine (Extra) is sold direct to retail grocers. This to save middlemen's profits. It is sold in double sealed cartons, not in cans. These and other economies—about 11 cents per pound—pay for the extra quality. Thus users get this matchless coffee without a fancy price.

SPICK AND SPAN WHITE HOUSE IS READY

Entire Structure Is Repainted and Cleaned; Even Cellar Wood Bins Shine

Washington, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A repainted and renovated White House was in complete readiness today for the impending return of President and Mrs. Coolidge from White Pine Camp, New York.

Painters, cleaners, mechanics and other workmen have toiled throughout the summer to make the homecoming pleasant and the executive mansion testified today through its spic and span condition to the success of their efforts.

A new coat of spotless white glistens on the outside walls. A new dust proof driveway replaces the old gravel approach to the front door. A new electric elevator runs smoothly from the basement to the upper floors.

Many old things are made to appear new. These include the famous East Room, which has been given a freshness it has not known for years. Even the wood bins in the cellar have been cleaned and filled to keep the hearth fires burning this Fall and Winter.

Gardeners, too, have done their best. The lawns have taken on a fresh green hue. The evergreen hedges have been clipped. Th rose gardens are brilliant with the last blooms of Summer.

MELLON BACK; GUARDED

New York, Sept. 17 (A.P.)—Extra precautions were taken by port authorities today to shield Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon upon his arrival on the Berengaria from a vacation abroad.

A special government cutter went down the bay early this morning to bring the Secretary ashore from the quarantine station. Captain George C. Moore, commander of the coast guard, cleared the pier of newspaper and camera men. He declined to assign a reason for this unusual action.

RIGHT KEY WILL BRING LAND

Stoughton, Sept. 7.—Have you a key in your pocket that don't fit any door? If it bears the number 18,849, it is worth money, for it will furnish entrance to a plot of land given away by the town of Stoughton.

Twenty thousand keys, bearing individual numbers were sent out by the town at the opening of the celebration of the 200th anniversary. The town has no record of where they went, but the holder of key No. 18 849 is the winner of a valuable piece of land.

COOLIDGE TO BE HOST TO QUEEN

Bucharest, Rumania, Sept. 17 (A.P.) Queen Marie, on her arrival in New York October 18, will proceed immediately to Washington to visit President and Mrs. Coolidge. She may then go West to Seattle, returning later to attend the sesquicentennial at Philadelphia. Her trip across the continent, it is understood, will be made on a special train.

With her daughter, Princess Ileana, the young Infanta Beatrice of Spain, and a suite, the Queen will leave Bucharest for Paris some time between October 2 and 4. Boarding the Leviathan, on which a suite has been placed at her disposal by the American government, at Cherbourg October 12.

Mmes. Simone Lahovary and Irene Procopiu, grand matrons of the Queen's court, will be Her Majesty's ladies-in-waiting on the trip. The royal party will total twenty-one. It is probable, but not yet certain, that Prince Nicholas, the Queen's second son, will also go.

U. S. DEMANDS SLAYERS

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—A new angle of the Mexican situation was before President Coolidge today, his last day in camp, in the murder of Jacob Rosenthal, an American business man, by Mexican bandits. The Chief Executive is in close contact with the situation through the State Department, which has instructed the American embassy in Mexico City to make urgent representations that the bandits be arrested and punished.

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Sept. 17.—The U. S. government served a summary demand upon Mexico to capture and punish the bandits who murdered Jacob Rosenthal, the New York merchant.

President Coolidge's determination to protect American life and property in Mexico was seen in this, the strongest note yet sent by his administration to the Mexican government.

Secretary Kellogg sent positive instructions to the embassy at Mexico City and informed the President of his quick action. It met with the complete approval of the President.

RECEIVES DISPATCHES.

The following dispatch from the State Department was received here by the President:

"Secretary of State has received telegram from embassy that two of the bandits were killed by Federal forces, but that other bandits fled and beat Rosenthal to death.

"Bandits are being pursued.

"Secretary has directed embassy to make urgent representations not only to see that bandits are arrested and punished, but that Rosenthal's body is recovered."

The President will keep in close touch with the State Department and all developments while preparing to leave for Washington tomorrow.

ORDER MAINTAINED.

He is convinced that the present Mexican government has maintained order quite generally throughout the Republic and is in a position to assert its authority against all lawlessness.

In a recent discussion of Mexican events, the President noted that banditry had practically lapsed and that attacks upon Americans had become infrequent. He said that Mexico has its troubles, just as certain sections of this country have the crime wave to contend against.

FRANCE DENIES AMERICAN GRAVES ARE DESECRATED

Paris, Sept. 17 (I.N.S.).—An official denial of charges made by Senator Caraway that American graves in France have been desecrated has been forwarded to the United States government through the French embassy at Washington.

The American Graves Registration Bureau announced it has no information to substantiate the charges made by Senator Caraway, although it is possible that in a few isolated cases insulting remarks may have been written on the crosses over the graves of the American dead. An investigation is being made.

BELIEVE WOLLASTON "SUICIDE" NOTE IS FAKE

A suicide note found in a strip of woods near North Central avenue and eDxter street, Wollaston, today started Quincy police on a hunt for the body of the writer. The note, scrawled in pencil aon cheap paper, reads: "Whoever finds this shall know that I, by my own hand, have taken my discontented life this day, Sept. 8, 1926. (Signed) P. T. "So help me God." While police are conducting a search, they are inclined to doubt the authenticity of the note. Fred Small, ten, of No. 144 Brook street, Wollaston, found the note while playing in the woods. Police records fail to show any missing person with initials "P. T."

The SECRET STUDIO by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

A Modern Romance With a Charming Heroine

"Joe Merton, you know I'm late, always hogging the bathroom just when I want it."

Rosemary Merton, youngest daughter in a large Roxbury family, rebels at her poor surroundings and dreams of romance and luxury. She is attending college and living at home, but lack of money prevents her from taking part in college social activities. Philip Eames, a young man who has been in Japan, comes home and Rosemary welcomes him happily. In the following weeks she imagines he is in love with her, but discovers she is mistaken. She comes home determined to give up college and get a job. Her heart is heavy because Phil says he is going away again.

CHAPTER V.

"WELL, I'm coming."

Ma wouldn't give her a minute's peace! She snatched her kimono and shuffled across the hall to the bathroom, slippered feet dragging.

Locked!

"Joe Merton! You know I'm late! You make me so sick, always hogging the bathroom just when I want it!"

That wasn't the way to handle Joe, and Rosemary knew it, but she was in no mood for coaxing . . . let him get mad if he wanted to . . . and make her late. What's a French class when your heart is broken?

He wouldn't even answer!

Rosemary kicked the door.

"Cut that out! I'll be out of here in two minutes, and you can wait—get me? You haven't any monopoly on this bathroom."

"Well, why don't you shave at night, like Frank?"

"Why don't you wash at night?" He gathered up his things and came out scowling. "You look like the morning after the night before! Out necking all night with Eames, I suppose. Ma ought to make you—"

"I was home at half past 5 in the afternoon!"

"You look it; eyes like two burnt holes in a blanket!"

Rosmeary slammed the door. What a day! And what a place. With the white paint peeling off the old zinc tub and water all over everything.

Somebody had been using her bath cap and torn a hole in it. She pulled it on and felt it rip further. Well, let it leak, she didn't care.

The water came on with a rush. Icy cold, drenching her, splashing out of the tub, on to her new Chinese slippers on the floor. That was the last straw!

Oh, for a house with a decent shower! The greenish mirror, spattered with soap and water, reflected her slight figure sickly, made her look angular and gray.

How could anybody start the day right with a mirror like that? It was enough to give you an inferiority complex.

She felt a little better when she was dressed. Maybe she could still make the 8 o'clock class. She ran downstairs and the kitchen.

Ma was making hotcakes. "Lovey, I don't know how it happened, but I ran out of bread—so I stirred these

PARIS RESTAURATEURS BALK AT BAN ON MEAT

Paris, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Restaurateurs of L'Orient have made a strong protest to the government on its economy regulation providing that only two meat dishes may be served at meals in restaurants.

The message informs the governmetn that its regulation does not constitute economy and that the only way to bring down the high cost of living is to prohibit the exportation of French foodstuffs to countries with high exchanges.

JAP EMPEROR VICTIM OF FAINTING SPELLS

Tokio, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—An imperial household bulletin states that the Emperor has suffered fainting spells since his recent arrival at his seaside villa at Hayama, but at the present time apparently has recovered. The Emperor has been in poor health for nearly six years, following a cerebral stroke.

PHONE RATE CUT 'IS IMPOSSIBLE,' SAYS JONES

Reduction in telephone rates is impossible under present conditions, President Matt B. Jones of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company declared today in answer to the address made yesterday by William H. O'Brien of the Public Utilities Department suggesting a possible revision of rates.

"Under the new rates earnings were less than 5.4 per cent. on the book cost of property used in furnishing the service," he said. "In view of the fact that courts and commissions generally hold that net earnings of 7½ to 8 per cent. are reasonable, it is impossible for me to see any basis for rate reductions."

WAY TO "SHOOT MOON"

Yom Kippur Begins at Sunset

LUNA 'GUN' TO 'BEAT' GRAVITY

Clark University Professor Makes Projectile That Can "Keep Shooting" on Way

Worcester, Sept. 17.—Shoot the moon! It can be done—regardless of all the statements of a noted British astronomer to the contrary—and an American is likely to be the first to do it.

This, in substance, was the reply made today to Prof. A. W. Bickerton of London by Prof. Robert H. Goddard of Clark University, whose experiments at shooting projectiles to record-breaking heights have won him recognition from distinguished scientists.

Prof. Goddard has been for many years engaged in perfecting the design of a projectile that will amaze the world by its vertical soaring powers, and his ultimate object is to lodge human beings or messages from this planet on the surface of the moon.

GOTTA GO SOME.

The idea was subjected to public criticism by the London scientist in an article in the Daily Mail in which he made reply to rumors that "somebody in Moscow wants to shoot the moon."

"In order to escape the gravitation of the earth, your projectile needs a velocity of seven miles a second," wrote Prof. Bickerton. "The heat energy needed to carry a single gramme of matter at that speed is 15,180 calories and where anybody can get such energy as that, no one knows."

Prof. Goddard's answer is that the secret lies in an idea developed long ago by him on a practical scale—namely, the construction of a torpedo that will receive fresh propulsion from new explosions at definite pre-determined intervals.

BUT 'IT CAN BE DONE.'

This involves the astounding idea of overcoming the earth's power of gravitation, the drawing force that this planet exerts for an indefinite distance above its surface, the natural law that "all objects which go up must come down."

McCORMACK "SUFFOCATED AUDIENCE," SAYS JAP

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—John McCormack, the famous Irish tenor, likes to read criticisms of his singing, but when a Japanese critic said the singer "suffocated" his audience, that was too much.

Discussing the incident here McCormack said he read a review translated from Japanese into English, in which it gave the [illegible] information that "Mr. McCormack suffocated his audience."

"It seemed a case for investigation," the singer declared. The critic meant, McCormack learned, that the singer "left his audience breathless."

SLEEP-WALKER FALLS OUT OF WINDOW; NEAR DEATH

Peabody, Sept. 17.—Mistaking a window for a door while walking in his sleep, Oscar Anderson, fifty-two, plunged to the ground from the top floor of a building at No. [illegible] Main street today and was found unconscious. He was removed to the Peabody Hospital, where his condition was pronounced critical.

According to police, he had suffered from epilepsy for some time.

JEWS FAST FOR 24 HOURS

Solemn 24-Hour Period of Atonement Starts With Ancient Chant

With the setting of the sun tonight, Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, is ushered in. It contniues with solemn prayer and fasting until morrow night.

All business will be suspended by Jews throughout the world. Sections of Roxbury, Dorchester and the West End will take on a solemn quiet when the doors of the business houses close.

Religious services will begin tonight and will continue through tomorrow when the biggest outpouring of Jewry of the entire year will fill synagogues and other places of worship throughout the city.

24-HOUR FAST.

All who profess the Jewish faith will keep the absolute fast during the twenty-four hours. Penitent worshippers will take no food or water during the period.

Public halls have been hired in many sections to provide a place of worship for temporarily organized congregations, and also by established synagogues to accommodate the overflow, always heavy on Yom Kippur.

The new Hebrew schools in Dorchester and Mattapan will be filled with the faithful. Many newly constructed synagogues will celebrate the solemn service of Yom Kippur for the first time.

BEGINS WITH CHANT.

The service begins tonight with the chant, "Kol Nidre," the best known in Jewish liturgy. Devotions tomorrow will include the service for the dead.

Yom Kippur brings to a climax the ten days of penitence in the Jewish religious calendar. Some of the most stirring sermons of the year will be preached in the synagogues tomorrow. The fast is stamped with spiritual significance and the whole service is intended to awaken a spiritual consciousness in the worshipper. The story of Jonah will be read at the afternoon service tomorrow.

IS SHE A "MISS HEART BREAKER," ALSO?

S35 MAY HOP OFF MONDAY

New York, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Triple tropical storms working their way northward along the Atlantic coast today have delayed the New York to Paris non stop flight of the Sikorsky biplane S35 until early next week.

Captain Rene Fonck hopes to make the getaway on Monday, but the time of departure will be determined by the weather reports from Washington.

ULTIMATUM TO KING ALFONSO

Paris, Sept. 17 (I N S).—An ultimatum, demanding the removal of Primo de Rivera from office as premier, has been delivered to King Alfonso, according to a report received here.

The ultimatum, which has a seventy-two hour time limit, is understood to have been forwarded by all the cavalry and artillery officers serving in Morocco and is supported by many infantry officers.

Mutiny Spreads in Spain, Declares British Observer

London, Sept. 17—(AP)—A special reporter of the Daily Express, who has been in Spain investigating the mutiny of the Artillery Corps, telegraphs from Hendaye a lurid picture, asserting that the mutiny continues to grow in the army and that a fresh upheaval is expected.

"If revolution comes," the correspondent says, "it will be through the army and not the people, who are not allowed to know what is happening.

"Their potential leaders, the intellectuals, are being rounded up and imprisoned after farcical trials by court martial. Primo De Rivera is pitiless toward the intellectuals, whose lot is as bad as that of the intellectuals in Russia immediately after the revolution."

Ouimet Trails Jones; Von Elm 6 Up on Dawson

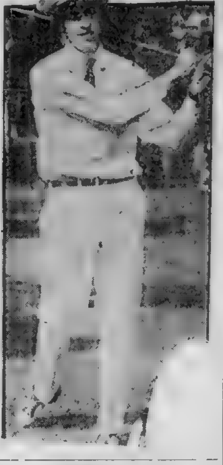
THREE INTERESTING PHOTOS MADE DURING THE GOLF TILT AT BALTUSROL

CHICK CONGRATULATES BOBBY

The above photo is that of Bobby Jones, favored to win the amateur golf title, and Chick Evans of Chicago, after Jones had defeated the veteran, 3 and 2.

JUST HOW THE CHAMPION DRIVES

Ad admiring gallery watched the Jones-Evans match, as can be verified by the photo above. Jones proved in this match that he is one of the best golfers in the world today playing the Scottish game.



Francis Ouimet of this city, who has been instrumental in upholding the prestige of the East in the Baltusrol tournament. Ouimet has played remarkable golf to date.

short on his chip and each then took two putts.

A clever recovery from a trap and a long putt saved Dawson a half at the second, which both played in par fours. Von Elm was straight with his drive and on with his mashie, while Dawson's second caught a bunker and fell back into the sand. The Chicago youth's third was fifteen feet from the flag and he sank his first putt, while Von Elm was taking the usual two on the green.

They also halved the third, where both took fives after driving into trouble. Von Elm hooked into the trees. Dawson sliced to the rough, the latter's second then struck a tree and bounded behind a bunker near the green.

The Los Angeles man was also at the edge of the green. Both chipped up to within 18 feet of the pin and then took two more putts to get down.

Von Elm became 2 up on Dawson by winning the fourth and fifth holes.

BIRDIE FOR VON ELM.

The former's mashie niblick over the short fourth was within two yards of the pin, and he sank the putt for a birdie 2, while Dawson from a tee shot which dropped twenty-five feet from the flag, needed two to hole out.

At the fifth Von Elm dropped another long putt for another birdie getting down in three shots to Dawson's four. The latter was trapped on his second at this hole, but pitched out nicely and dropped the ball in one putt.

Jones opened with a par five to win the first hole of his match against Ouimet.

Both were just off the fairway in the rough with their drives. Their seconds were short, the Boston player finding a trap at the right. Francis then pitched out poorly and took three putts, while Bobby, on with his third, was down in five for a win.

OUIMET SQUARES MATCH.

Ouimet squared the match at the second with a sensational fifty-foot putt for a birdie three to the champion's par four. Both were across the 376 yard stretch in the usual two shots. Ouimet's long stroke on the green hung hesitatingly at the lip of the cup and he had to be content with a par four.

They halved the third in par fours. Both had long drives and pitched within 20 feet of the pin. Two putts for each did the rest.

The 126-yard fourth, over water, was also halved. Ouimet's iron stroke from the tee was within eight feet of the flag, but he missed his first putt for a birdie. Jones, 20 feet from the hole, also failed on the first, but was down easily on the next.

VON ELM IN ROUGH.

Von Elm was in the rough with his drive at the sixth, while Dawson was straight from the tee and 275 yards. Both were on with their seconds, the Los Angeles man pitching cleverly from a trap. Both then dropped their balls in two putts.

Von Elm was in difficulties all the way at the seventh, hooking into the rough from the tee and falling short on his second. Dawson's approach landed well up by the cup and he almost holed an eagle three. His birdie four was good enough to give him a win.

Von Elm became two up again by winning the eighth, 3 to 4. Dawson, holding the honor on the tee for the first time, drove 250 yards straight down the fairway and was on with his second. Von Elm was also on in two, 25 feet from the cup. The Los Angeles man then poked in his first putt for a birdie three while Dawson took the regulation two strokes for a par four.

The champion and Ouimet came to the seventh tee still on even terms, playing the fifth in fives and the sixth in par fours.

Bobby was outdriving his veteran opponent on almost every hole and laying his approaches right up under the flag.

The seventh was also halved in par fives, leaving the rivals still all even. Here Bobby's approach landed in the rough. Ouimet's second barely missed a trap and bounded into the tall grass. Ouimet chipped up 30 feet from the flag, while Bobby was 20 feet closer. Each then took two putts.

DAWSON OFF FAIRWAY.

Ouimet laced out a 260 yard drive at the eighth, but the ball took a hook to the rough. Bobby was down the centre, his ball landing 20 yards in front of Ouimet's. Both pitched close to the flag on their seconds and took the conventional two putts.

Both were on the ninth green with high, straight shots. The balls fell almost together, 25 yards from the cup and each took two putts to get down.

Von Elm drove out of bounds at the tenth. Dawson was also off the fairway. The former had a magnificent out, however, while the Chicago player's recovery fell in a trap. The latter's third overreached. On with his fourth, he took two putts while up and tapped in the long putt to fifth short for a win.

The champion and his Boston opponent came to the eleventh still all square. Ouimet had a narrow escape, however, at the tenth. His second failed to reach the green while his chip was sixty feet from the hole. The veteran then stepped up and taped in the long putt to gain a half in fours.

JONES WINS FOURTEENTH

The neck and neck battle between Ouimet and J[redacted] continued through the twelfth fairway, where both required fours, one over par to hole out. Bobby's tee shot found a trap to the right of the green, while Francis lofted his iron into another hazard at the left. Both exploded to safety in the green and were down in two putts.

Both were in the rough again from the tee on the thirteenth. Bobby's second was also in a trap. He exploded to the edge of the green and was down in two putts, one over par. Ouimet on in two, had an unexpected lapse in his putting at this hole, taking three strokes to hole out.

At the 398-yard fourteenth, Ouimet hooked his drive into a clump of trees at the left of the fairway, but made a sensational recovery, putting his second on the edge of the green. Bobby's long drive was straight and true while his mashie fell within twenty feet of the cup. Bobby then dropped his second putt for a four, while Ouimet once more faltered on the green, taking three putts to get down.

CHAMP MAKES SPURT

The champion finished with a sensational spurt after they had halved the 15th and 16th in par figures, winning both the 17th [redacted] 18th holes, to become 3 up.

At the 17th Ouimet lost control of his clubs and was in three traps to take a seven. Bobby was just short of the green on his long mid-iron approach. He then chipped up to get his par five.

Bobby wound up the morning round with a birdie four on the eighteenth, closing with an advantage of three holes on his opponent.

After a terrific belt from the tee Bobby was on with a perfect approach, hole high and twenty feet from the pin. He then took his two putts.

Ouimet's second was short and he was too strong on his chip, over running the hole. Francis then took two putts to get down in par five.

Chasing Jones and Ouimet Over First 18 Holes

By BILL [redacted]

Baltusrol Golf Club, Short Hills, N. J., Sept. 17.

First Hole, Par 5—Both hooked into rough. Bobby out in front and close to the fence. Francis put his second in the trap and was short with his next.

Bobby just missed the same trap that Francis caught and put his third dead. Francis was strong with his fourth, the ball running to far edge of green. Francis did not get down in one putt and although Bobby missed his birdie he won the hole with a 5 to Ouimet's 6.

Second Hole, Par 4.—Bobby uncorked a long shot off the second tee, the ball running almost to cross traps, with Francis far in the rear. But the Woodland player was on with his second, and away as Bobby pitched on nicely. Francis' putt stopped on the lip of the cup, but just as Bobby was lining up his putt a gust of wind caught Ouimet's ball and it dropped into the cup for a "birdie and squared the match, for Bobby missed his lone one.

MATCH IS SQUARED.

Third Hole, Par 4—Bobby was out in front again of the third tee, but Francis was inside on the second. Bobby's second was to the left and short, but no damage resulted, for Francis failed to drop a 15-footer, and the hole was halved in fours.

Fourth Hole, Par 3—The short pond hole was halved in par. Ouimet was inside from the tee and Bobby's putt just ran by the cup. Francis was close to his deuce, being a trifle strong. After Ouimet dropped his second putt, he conceded Bobby his for a halve.

Fifth Hole, Par 4—One of the longest drives of the championship and a fine second got Bobby home but he took three putts, offsetting two great shots. Francis pushed his tee shot to the rough and spanked an iron into the trap and was short with his third. Bobby's first putt was short and then Francis put his stoney and the hole was halved when Jones slipped up on his short putt.

Sixth Hole, Par 4—Francis looked good for a win here when he put his second eight feet shy of the cup from back of the trap. Bobby was also on but to the left again, and his approach putt was right up there. Francis could not grab his 3 and the hole was halved in 4.

Seventh Hole, Par 5 Both caught the rough to the right and short of the green going to the 7th. Bobby clipped and short while Francis went over a trap and ran to the far edge of the green but his fourth was dead and in such a position as to make it inadvisable for Bobby to go bodly for his 4. They halved with 5s.

EVEN AT EIGHTH

Eighth Hole, Par 4—Ouimet caught the rough again at the 8th but got home with a great shot. Bobby was right down the middle and mashied his way home. The best they could get was 4's.

Ninth Hole, Par 3—Both on from tee, Ouimet short and to right with Jones hole high to the left. Francis strong with his approach but dropped it coming back and gave Bobby his for another halve.

Tenth Hole, Par 4—Francis bent one into the rough off the 10th tee and in brassieing his way out he hit a tree, the ball kicking off to the right 80 yards short of the green. His approach was off to the left of the cup. Bobby was home with a drive and a wonderful spot shot. Francis knocked the gallery down when he dropped his 35-foot putt for a 4 and got a halve as the best Jones could do was two putts.

Eleventh Hole, Par 4—Both cut the corner bunker going to the 11th and Francis was hole high and to the left in two. Bobby skimmed the trees to get home and another hole was halved, with 4s.

Twelfth Hole, Par 3.—They were both trapped on the short 12th they were out nicely but both took two putts, Francis slipping off when Bobby laid him a half stymie. It was halved in 4s.

Thirteenth Hole, Par 4—Both caught the rough on the left of the 13th fairway, the wind carrying their balls off the line. Francis played out well and was home, but Bobby was forced to go to the right, due to a tree, and landed in the trap to left of green, from where he left himself a 20-footer, which he missed. Francis ran five feet by and also missed by being short. Had Francis sunk this putt, Bobby would have been down for the first time since the championship started.

OUIMET IS UPSET.

Fourteenth Hole, Par 4 Evidently upset by his error on the 13th green, Francis hooked badly through the trees and into the bunkers. He came out well, but was short. Bobby whacked a beautiful drive and stuck his second on. Ouimet's chip shot was weak and he lost the hole to a 4.

Fifteenth Hole, Par 4—The drives were right together, Jones about five yards longer than Ouimet. Francis carried to the far edge of the green with his second leaving himself a down hill putt, which was run down to four feet of cup. Bobby was on the near edge of the green in 2 and sent his approach putt five feet [redacted] the cup but was down in par 4, as was Francis.

Sixteenth Hole, Par 3—Jones and Ouimet were on nicely from the tee and both barely missed deuces, halving the hole with 3s.

Seventeenth Hole, Par 5—Francis had a terrible time on the 17th. He started off by slapping his tee shot into the bunker and his second caught the cross traps from where he was very much short. Then he followed this by half topping his fourth into the trap in front of the green. Bobby uncorked a long drive and then a terrific spoon shot leaving him a short pinch over the traps to the green. He was on prettily with his third and after Francis had exploded out of the trap, he conceded Bobby the hole.

Eighteenth Hole, Par 5 Francis fell back another hole at the eighteenth and ended the morning round three down to the defending champion. Francis had a fine tee shot but he tried to spoon his way home from a down-hill lie and he was short while Bobby, after another great drive, was home with a long iron. Francis' approach was strong running to the far edge of the green and he did not get down, but Bobby putting his third dead got his four for a win.

TUNNEY SEES BIG HELP IN ADVICE

By GENE TUNNEY

Stroudsburg, Pa., Sept. 17.—Jack Kearns, who made a champion of Jack Dempsey, has advised me through articles he has written and in conversations with me, just [redacted] to fight his former protege.

I have been asked if I will take heed of his advice. The answer, of course, is an affirmative one. Kearns knows his business and he knows his Dempsey.

Gene Tunney

After having handled the champion in all his important fights, Jack ought to have a [illegible] on the man who he [illegible].

I would be extremely foolish if I refused to pay any attention to 'Doc's' [illegible]. As I have said before, I am always open to advice. I want men who know the boxing business to give me tips for, as I have said, I always go into a match with a certain plan of action mapped out. This plan must be elastic but for the most part it is followed out in the fight.

Great old Jim Corbett (what a marvel he must have been) has drilled me and Jim Jeffries has added his word of advice. Of course, I have absorbed it all. Who am I that I should disregard the lessons these ring immortals have sought to teach me?

In order to be successful in an important contest a boxer must analyze his opponent; study his strong points and his defects and then make up his mind just how to cope with those strong points and how to pierce the flaws in his foe's armour.

Kearns, better than anyone, can and has told me of Dempsey's weaknesses; personal observation has taught me the few glaring faults in his style as well as the best features of his attack.

JACK SAYS GIBBONS GO BEST

Champ Claims Showing at Shelby Proved His Ability to Box

By JACK DEMPSEY.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 17.—The only man I failed to stop during my championship days was Tommy Gibbons. And Gene Tunney makes a lot of capital over that. Yet to me it seems, with all things considered, it was just about my greatest fight.

I'm generally supposed to be nothing but a puncher. The idea exists that if my punch isn't doing any quick killing and the battle is prolonged, I am flirting with old kid defeat. In the Gibbons fight I met the man who then was rated as the cleverest, shiftiest heavyweight in the game, and I beat him to the decision.

Jack Dempsey

In Gibbons I found a man who wasn't easy to hit. He had the great knack of riding out most of my punches, thus decreasing the force of them as they landed. I found that out before two rounds of the battle had been ended. I knew that my punches which had dropped 40 to 45 men in the other days, probably were not going to drop the elusive Gibbons.

I stepped right in and outboxed and clearly outpointed Gibbons. Every human who saw that fight will agree that I met Tommy Gibbons, the craftiest boxer of them all, at his own game—and whipped him at his own game.

Although I'm supposed to be only a spurting fighter and not much on long distance, the newspaper accounts of that battle say that I set the pace for Gibbons all the way, that I outgeneralled the "master boxer."

Beyond all that I know I traveled faster and fought with more aggressiveness in the last two rounds than I did in the first two, which seems to give the chuckle to the idea that I can't go a fistic distance.

TUNNEY PLANS O. K.

Tunney seems to be planning to keep out of my way for the first few rounds, and then, as he says

"I'll start after Dempsey, as he grows tired, and I'll box him until I have beaten him down and then I'll knock him out."

He's right when he figures that I am going to step out after him with the bang of the first gong. I always do that. I'm hoping I can nail him a few that will take a lot more than the enthusiasm out of him and then nail him a few more so that the customers can get home before midnight.

But if Gene proves to be as tricky as Tommy was and ride the punches in the same way—well, then it's a boxing match for awhile at least. I'm supposed to be the slugger in this affair—and Gene's the fancy-stepping boxer.

GIBBONS HARDER HITTER.

My ambition is to knock out Tunney. But if I can't do that then I'll beat him to the decision at his own game. For if I outboxed Tommy Gibbons on the best day that Tommy ever knew, and when I was 10 notches below my present fighting form, then I reckon that I'll whip Gene that way, too—if I can't flatten him.

I don't think that Gene ever could punch as hard as Gibbons. I met Gibbons when both hands were crushing fistic chins; I met him when he was at his best; I took him at his own style of fighting. And no man denies that I gave him a decisive whipping. So why should I worry myself into a sick headache over Gene Tunney, who does not, in my belief rate with Gibbons at his best?

Of course, I may be wrong on that. Tunney of today may be better than Gibbons of 1923. But, on the 23rd I'm going to throw everything I have into the effort to prove that I am RIGHT.

Rushing Tactics Will Win for Tunney Says Kearns

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

JACK SURE TO TOPPLE UNDER FIRE

Jack Kearns Gives Challenger Pointers How to Beat Ring King

This is the fourth article of a series written exclusively for the Boston Evening American on the Dempsey-Tunney melee. Kearns, as Dempsey's ex-manager, is better qualified to judge the relative merits of the two boxers than any critic in the world.

By JACK KEARNS

I SAY that Gene Tunney must take the play away from Jack Dempsey if he hopes to win the heavyweight title.

Tunney must go to Dempsey and keep going. Firpo went to him in that first round at the Polo Grounds and almost nipped the title.

He took the play from Dempsey but he didn't follow through. He didn't keep taking the play. He didn't keep going. He had Dempsey snoring between rounds and he had him snoring in the middle of the fight.

Jack Kearns

He didn't have the ring knowledge enough to know when he had a man going. He had a gone man to whip no matter how things went, but he didn't keep the play from Dempsey after he had taken it from him. Greenness and bad handling did that for him.

Dempsey is essentially a front runner. He can't fight well any other way. He can't wait. He's a total loss waiting. I discovered that early in our association.

The man who will beat him for the title will be a man who will crowd Dempsey. A man who will make Dempsey break ground in [illegible] a band.

CHAMP ONLY HUMAN.

It will require hard fast fighting to make him take to cover, but the fact that he is only human and mighty human at that, seems to have been lost sight of by his former opponents.

Few men have lived who could clip you for a knockout while on the dead run backwards. I know that Tunney isn't one of those at least. He will have to turn over a new leaf in this fight.

He will have to change his whole attitude in the ring mental and physical. He can't stand around and try to outthink Dempsey. He once [illegible] the cracks that he would be able to whip Dempsey because he figured that Dempsey always [illegible] his [illegible] in the dressing room before coming into the ring.

Let Tunney forget all about a mental conquest of this bird. Dempsey will ruin an intellectual. Ponder within a given circle in front of Dempsey and he'll belt you putrid. Stand around in front of him figuring this or that move out and he'll scramble your brains all over the lot.

You simply can't wait on him. You've got to drive him if ever you hope to beat him. Remember I think him only a fair fighter, but what a fine punch he has to fear!

Tunney naturally stands out. He isn't the greatest fighter that I've ever seen by a long shot. He has never displayed forward speed and unless he does this time he might just as well throw his fighting tack into the fireplace and take up some other business, if being the champion is the only think that will suit his fancy.

TUNNEY'S ONLY HOPE.

He is young. He is ambitious, I believe. He has the world by the bustle. He is coming and I know the other fellow has been going for a long time. Nobody knows that better than Dempsey.

So I say, Tunney's chance is crowding, crowding and more crowding. If he allows Dempsey to plunge at him for three rounds it might end in three. Remember, I think that that is all the [illegible] that is left in Dempsey. He is good at three rounds. [illegible] will be enough if Tunney doesn't take the play away from him.

Let Tunney do all the fighting in the first three rounds and he's the next champion of the world.

TUNNEY FAILS TO IMPRESS CONWAY

By JACK CONWAY

Stroudsburg, Pa., Sept. 17.—The Gene Tunney whom I saw workout here at the local Country Club did not impress me as a fighter who is liable to dethrone Jack Dempsey when they battle in Philadelphia on next Thursday night. Tunney seems to lack the aggressiveness and punching power so necessary to overcome a [illegible] ring king like Dempsey.

Jack Conway

It was the first time Tunney has worked out in three days. Gene told me he is afraid of going stale which is why he has let down in his training. The challenger planned to work out this afternoon, tomorrow and end up his training on Sunday. He will then only do light exercise until the day of the fight when he will be faced by a man's sized job.

TUNNEY NOT VICIOUS.

You would not be afraid if you ran into Tunney in an alley on a dark night. There is not anything vicious about his looks. I always have made a practice of looking at peoples jaws. You can size up a man very well this way.

Great leaders like Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson had strong jaws. One glance at their jaws and you at least knew they would go down fighting.

Dempsey has this type of jaw. When in the ring he grits his teeth together while fire seems to flash through his eyes. As he [illegible] a punch he draws back his lips and his glistening white teeth look as threatening as those of a panther about to spring.

If you met Dempsey in an alley on a dark night and did not know he restricted his fighting to occasions when a promoter like Tex Rickard pays him around $825,000, you would start to say your prayers if you still remembered any of them.

In the case of Tunney you would not hesitate to stop and talk about whatever happened to be on your mind.

USES TRICK PUNCH

When Gene resumed training he punched the small bag for a round. He then used a trick punch employed by fancy gymnasium workers and snapped the cord which held the bag to the platform. He punched away at it for two minutes while the bag bounced around. Lou Fink, his trainer, then held the bag firmly while Tunney socked away to his hearts content.

Tunney will enter the ring weighing more than 190 pounds. He has developed a great deal physically since he held the American light heavyweight championship. At first I doubted some of the stories sent out about Tunney's weight, but after seeing him do his stuff I am convinced he is every bit as big as Dempsey.

Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, did not remain for the workout. He told me it was necessary for him to go to Philadelphia on business. Gibson has had little to do with Tunney's training. The boxer seems to map out his own training program.

There is a report that Gibson has no contract with Gene and that the feeling between boxer and manager is not just what one might expect them to be.

Regardless of the outcome of the title battle, Tunney will be well paid. His contract calls for a guarantee of $150,000 and 12 per cent of the receipts over $1,000,000. Rickard figures the contest will draw $1,750,000, which will mean that Tunney will pull down $240,000.

Tagging All Bases

After setting a season's record by overwhelming the Phillies 23 to 3, scoring twelve runs in one inning, the Cardinals booted the Phils again 10 to 2 and tied the Reds for first place. The Cards got forty-one hits, Hornsby and Hafey collecting six apiece.

Cincinnati made it eight straight as Donohue uncorked a four-hit game and won a 3-to-0 duel from Virgil Barnes of the Giants. Not a Giant reached second.

Having acted as doormats for the Cardinals and Reds, the Dodgers turned around and licked the Pirates 2 to 1, putting those worthies out of the race. The Bucs could do little against Jess Barnes.

The Yankees got only two hits in each game as Levsen and Buckeye pitched Cleveland back into the American League race with two scintillating victories, 2 to 1 and 5 to 0. Levsen won his own game with a single, while the Indians knocked Pennock out of the box in the night cap.

Washington trounced Detroit twice, 3 to 2 and 5 to 4, by late rallies.

After beating the Athletics 1 to 0 on Sisler's triple and Schang's single, the Browns lost the second game 5 to 1. Zachary and Gray were the winning twirlers.

Staging New Fall Styles

Reports from every city in the U. S. A. where we staged the Style Show in our windows last week showed we played to "STANDING ROOM ONLY".

The Styles made a hit with every audience. The Colors were just right—and the Price paid was the price stamped on the ticket.

You knew you could see everything for $3.50, and the best in the house was yours for $5.00. No one had to pay the speculator's price.

Of course in some cities there was an unusual demand for local favorites which we anticipated. But there was a Universal demand in all cities for the Snap Down Raw Edge and the Flat Set Bound Edge.

In this type of hat you can wear the brim up or down and poke your personality into the crown.

And this is a colorful Autumn Season. We have all shades of Gray—Silver, Pearl or Steel. And all tones of Tan—Fawn, Chamois, Copper and Golden Brown.

I was surprised to see how much alike the new hats looked wherever the big crowds gathered.

The Style Favorites I saw at Belmont Park were just as popular at Meadowbrook.

The Styles worn this week at the National Tennis Tournament at Forest Hills were practically the same as the hats I saw at the "National Pastime" at the Polo Grounds.

You couldn't tell whether they paid $5 or $15 because there were no price tickets on the hats and the labels were on the inside.

Now, if you want to know the answer as to "What Price Style", just give me a chance to duplicate any style I saw anywhere at $3.50 or $5.00.

COCHET TO FACE RENE LACOSTE

French Stars Eliminate Tilden, Johnston and Williams at Forest Hills

New York, Sept. 17 (I.N.S.).—Vincent Richards was America's only hope today to keep the national lawn tennis singles title from going to France. Richards meets Jean Borotra in one semi-final match at Forest Hills this afternoon, with Henri Cochet opposing Rene Lacoste in the other.

Richards easily defeated Jacques Brugnon yesterday, but the champion, William T. Tilden, lost to Cochet, while "Little Bill" Johnston lost to Borotra and Dick Williams bowed to Lacoste.

Tilden's six-year reign as the kingpin of tennis was ended in one of the hardest fought battles ever waged on the courts. Ignoring his injured knee, the champion staged a fierce rally in the last set, but was forced to bow to the consistent steadiness and craftily placed shots of Cochet.

WESTERN BALL SCANDAL IS QUASHED

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 17 (A.P.)—The Western League pennant race "scandal" today was quashed by M. H. Sexton, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

He absolved the Des Moines, Lincoln, Omaha and Tulsa clubs and Casey Mills of the Lincoln Club of charges [illegible] Oklahoma City fans involving [illegible] designed to aid Des Moines in its close pennant race with Oklahoma City.

Commenting [illegible] President Sexton [illegible] institutions [illegible] the sport declaring [illegible] be given the consequences of scandalous charges.

The complaint, first filed with Baseball Commissioner Landis and referred by him to President Sexton included a statement that Mills had declared that his team was "for Des Moines" and would "see that Oklahoma city does not win the pennant."

Mills was incorrectly quoted, Sexton found, and his statement, in reply to a jibe from the Oklahoma City grandstand, was not meant, in Sexton's opinion [illegible] conclusion. The decision exonerates Mills "of thought or intention of wrongdoing."

President Sexton found that charges that a game between Des Moines and Tulsa on [illegible] was not rained out, were without foundation.

Postponement of a Lincoln-Des Moines game and subsequent failure to play off the game [illegible] favorable weather also was investigated and found to involve no irregularity, Sexton said.

The decision declares the failure of the Omaha club to appear in Des Moines on August 31 was unavoidable [illegible] the charge that Omaha might have intentionally permitted a forfeiture. This forfeiture, however, was overruled and the game played.

Scranton Defeats Manchester 8-4

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 17.—Scranton, champions of Ohio-Pennsylvania League, again defeated Manchester, New England League winners, 8 to 4, and thereby chalked up their third straight victory in the first game of the series in the Queen city.

JOE FITZGERALD HELPS O'DONNELL AT HOLY CROSS

Worcester, Sept. 17.—Joe Fitzgerald, former Harvard player, was here today helping Cleo O'Donnell with his Holy Cross backfield, special attention being paid the quarterbacks, who were kept on the field after the rest of the squad had been dismissed.

Fifty minutes of hard scrimmaging featured the workout. Billy Wise and Blondy Ryan were the two quarterbacks. During the stiff workout two men burst into prominence and will receive additional attention from the coaches. They were Sheldon Dasey of Altoona, Pa., a fullback candidate, and Edward Gannon of Syracuse, who is trying out for a guard berth.

$24,229 Gate Receipts for Chapman-Finnegan Fistic Combat

A total of 10,595 fans paid $24,229 to see Honeyboy Finnegan defeat Red Chapman of Chelsea in a one-sided bout at Braves Field. These figures were given out by Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk A. A. at noon today.

Of the net proceeds each boxer will receive 25 per cent., or approximately $6,000, while the widow of the late Johnny Mahoney, for whom the show was given as a testimonial will receive about $7,500, the expenses of the bouts accounting for the balance.

These figures were considerably under estimates made by officials of the Suffolk A. A. while the Finnegan-Chapman battle was still in progress. Early estimates placed the probable attendance at 17,000 with possible receipts of $40,000.

Finnegan wielding a ponderous left hand and boxing with the skill of a past master, surprised even his most ardent supporters by the ease with which he disposed of the highly touted Chapman.

CHAPMAN STARTS FAST.

The Dorchester thumper left no doubt as to his mastery. Barring the first three rounds, in which Chapman flashed the form that has carried him to the crest of the featherweight division, Finnegan was in complete control of the battle.

Chapman started off like a certain winner. In the first round he boxed carefully and gave Finnegan plenty to think about as he poked a stiletto-like left hand into Honeyboy's midriff and slammed a hard right to the Dorchester lad's proboscis.

FINNEGAN GETS GOING.

From the beginning of the fifth to the finish Finnegan took the fight away from Chapman. He scored heavily with left hooks to the head and body and occasionally interpolated a slashing straight right to the head.

Chapman, battling with the cunning of long experience, essayed in vain to halt the [illegible] rushes of his [illegible] and fast [illegible] but as the battle neared the finish he tired perceptibly and at the final bell was as weary as a marathon runner breasting the tape at the finish.

Finnegan had a wide margin in the fifth and sixth although Chapman [illegible] from his nose with a [illegible] to the beak in the fifth, a punch which sent the Honeyboy back on his [illegible]. The seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth found Chapman striving to stall off Finnegan and when the bell rang he slumped into his corner with the air of a there [illegible] a blege.

"I knew I was going to win after the third round," said Finnegan today. "I figured that Chapman would have to do most of his damage in the early rounds if he was going to win and when the fourth arrived and I was still unhurt I just knew I couldn't help but win. But Chapman is a game fellow. Don't forget that."

Chapman took a philosophical view of the outcome. In his dressing room after the bout he declared the thought the better man won.

RED WANTS RETURN GO.

"I know Finnegan had the better of the fight," admitted Chapman. "Anyway I would like another chance. I was unable to get started. It seemed as though my arms and legs would not do what I wanted them to. I hope Finnegan will box me again."

Sammy Fuller surprised the natives in the scheduled ten-round semi-final by flattening English Johnny Brown in less than fifty seconds of actual fighting, a barrage of lefts and rights to the chin had Brown on the canvas in less than twenty seconds for the count. After his second trip to the resin for the count of nine Referee Jerry Moore waved the combatants from the ring and lifted the hand of Fuller.

In the opening bout, a six rounder, Joe Garvey of Clinton, outpointed Frank Curtis of Hyde Park. Wop Manolian scored a verdict over Gene Mars in an eight rounder and Willie Garo trounced Eddie Williams in another bout of the same duration.

GRIFFIN PURCHASED BY BROOKLYN DODGERS

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Pitcher Clarence Griffin, a left hander, has been purchased by the Brooklyn Club from Memphis of the Southern League. He had a record of 20 wins against [illegible] defeats at the time of his acquisition. Agents of the New York Giants were watching Griffin when Uncle Wilbert Robinson ordered his purchase.

Inside Golf

"When the sand in a trap is wet and well packed an explosion shot is seldom attempted. Instead you now "cut" the ball up and out with the niblick. For this play get the direction line and plant your feet firmly in the sand. If the ball must take a considerable rise to clear an embankment, flatten down the blade some as you swing it back and forth over the ball in the address. You may, if you wish, sole the club on the grass on the bank until you get your grip as you want it, but you must never of course let the clubhead touch the sand in the trap while you are addressing the ball. Swing the club now largely with the wrists. Let it swing slowly back like a pendulum then let it have plenty of time to turn from the top at the end of a half back swing. Then flick it forward with the wrists letting it cut down under the ball. And go clear through the ball.

GO CLEAR THROUGH THE BALL.

Yale Squad Is Cut to 25 Men

New Haven, Sept. 17.—Tad Jones sliced his group of football candidates in half today, the large and unwieldy regiment numbering fifty men being reduced to a more easily manageable twenty-five. This cut is by no means final, but was made to increase the efficiency of the coaching staff.

Sixteen of the retained players are letter men from last year, while only four members of the '29 freshmen were included. The select four are Collins, an end, Charlesworth and Phillips, centres, and Switz, a quarterback.

The complete squad follows: Ends, Fishwick, Scott, [illegible], Collins and Mallory; tackles, Vandergrift, Benton, Richards; guards, Flaherty, Starbuhn, Webster and Wortham; centres, Charlesworth, Phillips and Harvey; quarterbacks, Captain Phil Bunnell and Switz; backs, Kline, Noble, Foote, Caldwell, Stone, Wadsworth, Cox and Goodwin.

Brown Joins Tufts Squad, True Lost

Carey Brown, the hard-running fullback of last year's Jumbo seconds, who was ineligible for varsity football at Tufts during that season, has appeared in uniform and will be a valuable addition to Coach Arthur Sampson's aggregation.

Brown should be a fine plunging back this year. He is a transfer from the University of Tennessee. Charlie Hogan, formerly of Mechanic Arts, has joined the squad.

Dean True, a mainstay in the line for the past few seasons, will probably not return to college this fall, thus causing a gap in the forward wall which may be difficult to fill. Hogan is a possible choice to take True's position.

Two men are on the casualty list, both with slight shoulder injuries. They are Spofford, a lineman, and Pasquino, a back.

HARKO TO BOX THOMAS BEFORE SALEM A. A. FANS

The boxing scene shifts to Salem tonight, where the Salem A. A. will hold its weekly show in the North Street Rink. The feature bout brings together Johnny Harko of Manchester, N. H., and Tony Thomas of New Bedford.

In the semi-final Louis Prince of the North End will meet Johnny Moore of Boston.

Two other bouts which matchmaker Jim Mede has arranged bring Ace Hogan against Al Morgan and Sailor King against Young Ad Wolgast.

LAST GAME MAY DECIDE STRUGGLE

Leaders Close Season in Battle at Cincinnati on Sept. 26

By NICK FLATLEY

THE fatal toll having been pealed off over the prostrate forms of the Pittsburgh Pirates 1925 world's champions, who have fallen 4½ games behind the lead and are practically eliminated as title contenders, the Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals open a new born battle today for the National League championship.

Nick Flatley

Deadlocked in first place as the result of a double victory of the Cardinals yesterday while the Reds were beating the New York Giants, the pennant will be decided over a stretch of nine games.

There is yet the possibility that the final game of the National League season may determine the pennant for St. Louis and Cincinnati are scheduled to play the last game of the season in Cincinnati, Sunday, Sept. 26.

The schedule of gme for the two teams follows.

CINCINNATI

At New York—Two games.
At Boston—Three games.
At Philadelphia—Three games.
St. Louis at Cincinnati—One game.

ST. LOUIS

At Philadelphia—Three games.
At New York—Three games.
At Brooklyn—Two games.
At Cincinnati—One game.

THERE is little choice in the schedule although if there is any edge the Cardinals seem to have it. The Reds must play two more games with New York, which has won 13 out of 20 in the season series thus far.

And if the Giants fail to stop the Reds, baseball eyes from all four corners of the universe will be turned toward Braves Field next week, where the Reds are scheduled to play three games in two days.

After defeating the St. Louis Cardinals in three out of four games, thus knocking them out of a three and a half games lead, the Braves are expected to turn their guns on the Reds.

Following the mid-season outbreak in Cincinnati in which flying fists were trumps and which resulted in the arrest of one Boston player, there is no love lost between these teams. In fact, the Braves will be spurred on, to hand out the same treatment to the Reds as they meted out to the Cardinals.

DAVE BANCROFT will return to the Braves lineup for this important series and the Reds will arrive in the Hub in the midst of one of the few miracle winning streaks enjoyed by the Tribe this year. By beating Charlie Root yesterday, the Braves ran their streak to six victories in the last seven games and the series in Boston is more feared by the Reds than any games remaining on their schedule.

Pitchers will decide the issue in the remaining days of the pennant fight.

And here Cincinnati has the edge as Donohue, Rixey, Luque and Mays looms up as a sturdy staff of experienced mound operators who will not crumble in the crisis. Against this quartet, the Cardinals will rely on three hurlers, Flint Rhem, Jess Haines and Willie Sherdel. Hornsby will be taking a chance any time he uses any other hurler.

Yankee Wins R Class Trophy

Newport, R. I., Sept. 17.—The New York Yacht Club's cup for R class boats was won by the Yankee, owned and sailed by Charles A. Welch of Corinthian Yacht Club of Marblehead, which took both morning and afternoon races and scored the highest number of points.

Charles H. W. Foster's Mary of the Eastern Yacht Club, which finished third in the morning race and second in the afternoon, won second place, while Donald M. Cowl's Ardelle was third, and Commodore George Nichol's Gamecock fourth.

M'CARTHY MEETS O'CONNOR FOR HANDBALL LAURELS

Phil McCarthy will meet Neil O'Connor at the L Street Baths Sunday morning to decide the New England handball championship on the courts of the men's division. This match, which is slated for 11 o'clock, is to select a contestant to meet the champion of New York for a purse.

Another game carded will be that between James O'Brien of Roxbury and G. A. Petermont of New York.

BOXING FANS AWAIT SMITH-ROBERTSON GO

Portland, Me., Sept. 17.—A banner crowd is expected to attend the clash between Jeff Smith of Bayonne, N. J., and formerly of Gorham, Me., and Homer Robertson, brilliant Pittsburgh middleweight, at Exposition Building next Monday night under auspices of the Eastern A. A. This match was originally carded for [illegible] Tuesday.

Smith is training here. He realizes he is facing one of the most formidable opponents in the country. The Pittsburgh boxer holds a three-round K. O. over Bob Lawson, and [illegible] decisions over Carl Carter, Jack Elliott, Jack Reddick, Jamaica Kid, Young Fisher, Andy "Kid" Palmer and many other notables.

FIVE BOUTS ON FT. BANKS CARD FOR MONDAY

Indications point to plenty of fighting—fist fighting—next Monday night at Fort Banks, Winthrop, when the soldiers boxing organization stage a tourney.

The program, arranged by Captain Lowry, the athletic officer, for the outdoor show to which the public will be admitted, includes five bouts, three eights and two sixes, with Ed Johnson of Fort Banks, who is touted by the soldiers as a "comer" meeting Joe Garvey, the Suffolk Law students, in the wind-up.

Eddie Marlow, Woburn, meets Joe Goss of Lawrence, another big favorite at the fort in the semi-final, while the third eight will bring Billy Catuo, U. S. S. Florida and Willie Card of Boston. The two sixes will bring out Pee Wee Joe of Fort Banks vs. Patsy Logan, Boston, and Eddie Curley, Boston, vs. Tim Sullivan, Revere.

Eddie Mahan to Coach at Choate

WALLINGFORD, CT., Sept. 17 (A.P.)—Eddie Mahan, former Harvard football star and captain, has joined the coaching staff of the Choate School of Wallingford, Bo Olcott, head coach at the school, announced today. Mahan will handle the backfield men. Karl Leinbach, University of Pennsylvania, is line coach.

Mahan is one of the many star athletes who come from Natick, and while at Harvard was regarded by many critics as one of the greatest halfbacks of all time. He captained the Crimson eleven in 1915, and two years ago served as baseball coach at Cambridge.

McCarron Is Star of Boxing Card

Jack McCarron of Somerville is the outstanding star entered in the open amateur boxing show of the Dilboy Post V. F. W. on the George Dilboy Field, West Somerville, on Monday night. McCarron, who this Summer, won the Pan-American honors at the Allied Tournament held in South America, already has forwarded his entry.

This home-boy has won thirty one matches, of thirty-seven contests, and is rated as one of the best pures in the country.

The tournament will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

Four Princeton Backfields Drill

Princeton, Sept. 17.—Head Coach Bill Roper has his Orange and Black charges running at top speed, with four backfield combinations being put through their paces. Only fundamentals are being treated as yet, with the emphasis on speed.

Only one member of the squad is on the injured list. Joe Requardt stepped on a photographer's camera and is out resting a twisted ankle. Chuck Howe, '29 freshman captain, is still among the absent due to an attack of tonsilitis at his home in Beaver Falls, Penn.

MALDEN VISITS LYNN G. E. TONIGHT

On top of the report that the Lynn General Electric team in the Twilight League would not play any more games at home the fans of Lynn got together and induced Tom Whelan to play the Malden game tonight, which was scheduled for the Malden stadium, at the G. E. field, and it is expected that one of the largest crowds of the season will turn out to see these two clubs in action.

A win for Lynn tonight will virtually give them the championship of the Twilight League which is a "the world series." Frank McDonald will twirl for the home team and Lefty Shea on the mound for the visitors.

Regal Steps in Style

Our Style Scouts in London and Paris have kept us in close touch with everything that is new over there, and our Managers over here act as our Style Sentries in every important city in the U. S. A.

Our Designers have worked with the Last Maker and Pattern men, and have seen everything new, before it is made into a shoe.

We've adapted the English and French style suggestions, and duplicated the new ideas of the Custom Boot Makers.

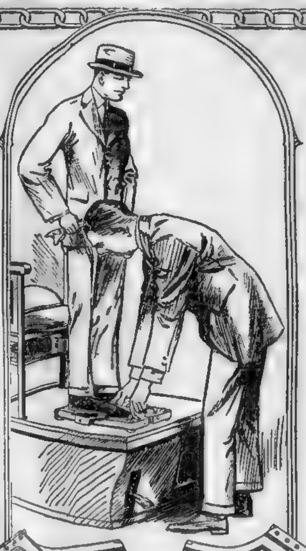
There is a greater demand for darker shades of tan, and black shoes will be more popular than they have been for years.

You'll see a tendency towards a slender custom toe, instead of the extremely broad toe and short vamp that we introduced last September to go with the extreme broad trousers. We called it the "Balloon toe," and it was copied by everyone.

The college men started something but the business man objected to wearing skirts — and that's what they looked like when they made trousers 24 inches at the bottom.

To sum up the Style situation in a word, we've got everything you'll see anywhere at about half the price you'll see elsewhere—for the same Quality.

When we say "Quality" we mean the leather and the lining, the Inner Sole and Outer Sole, everything inside and outside, from heel to toe, from top to bottom, including the Workmanship, Finish and Fit.



with Scientific Fit

And speaking of fit—did you ever try on a pair of shoes that felt tight, and the salesman stretched them and told you that it was because the leather was new and stiff and you'd feel all right as soon as you took a couple of steps—and you thought you'd have to call an ambulance before you reached home?

The trouble was the shoes were fitted too short, because your feet were measured while you were sitting down instead of standing up.

Now, to solve the fitting problem in Regal Stores and to insure a perfect fit, we have equipped every Regal Store with the new Resco Fitting Service.

When you stand up in this new Resco Twin-Foot Fitting Machine it automatically and accurately measures the length and width of BOTH feet at the same time.

The delicate mechanism is scientifically adjusted to measure the foot expansion and register the length and width of the shoe required to properly fit both stocking feet when the "standing weight" is placed on the sensitive springs.

Every salesman in every Regal Store has been trained to use this new machine and if you will allow him to give you the size that you require in the style you like we will guarantee the Comfort and Fit as well as the Quality and Style of any shoe you may select.

Milk Should Be Basis of All Food Budgets

Budget Chat No. 154

By MARTHA LEE.

MORE about that all-important food question today.

First, I want to give you an excellent rule for the spending of the food budget. Every food dollar should be divided into fifths.

Supposing one-fifth (20c) should be spent for meat, eggs, and fish, one-fifth (20c) for milk, allowing at least one pint for each child and one-third of a quart for each adult, one-fifth (20c) for vegetables and fruit and one-fifth (20c) for fats, sugars and other groceries. The minimum amount of milk has been given in this table, but one quart for each child and one pint for each adult is safer.

Another good rule given by the U. S. Department of Agriculture is to make milk the basis of the Food Budget. No meat, eggs, or fish should be bought until the full amount of milk has been purchased and then not more than one-fifth of the total food allowance to be spent for these items.

Spend for fruit and vegetables just as much as has been spent for meat. For fats, allow each day two ounces for each adult, one and one-half to two ounces for each child. An ounce of butter equals two level tablespoonfuls.

For cereals and bread, spend from one-fifth to two-fifths of the total food allowance; for sugar and other fats allow two and one-half ounces a day for each person. One famous doctor says that no family of five should purchase meat until they have first purchased three quarts of milk.

First plan the separate meals, taking care to consider food values and the foods that are in season. Then make out the marketing list. Give special attention to the proper proportion of milk, meat and vegetables. This kind of a food budget will give you better food with greater variety at less cost than when menus are made from day to day.

Perplexing Questions About Small Incomes Answered

Mrs. E. S. has hesitated to write for a budget on account of her small income, but believes one would help her. Husband's salary is $21 a week. Pays $35 a month rent. She does plain dressmaking to help out sometimes. Has two back bills to pay. Insurance is 75c a week on one policy and $3 a month on another. Needs money with which to buy materials to make fancy work to sell.

A $21 budget will give you $2.10 for savings and insurance, $4.20 for rent and business carfares, $7.25 for food including husband's lunches, $2.15 for clothing, $3.15 for operating and $2.15 for personal.

Your rent is away out of proportion to your income. If you continue to pay $35 a month, it means that you must take $4.50 from the other allotments to make up the rent deficit and I do not see how you can do this and not run very short under the other allotments.

Miss N. W. thinks everybody she reads about has more income than hers. Is working for $17 a week. Expenses are rent $1 (as roomer pays for the balance). Insurance $1.64 a week, wet wash 80c a week, milk bill $2, gas, electricity and telephone bills come to about $5 a month. Has mother, husband, two babies and herself to feed on this income. Would like to know how to get ahead.

Savings which are represented at present by your insurance can be allotted $1.70, rent $1, food $8.65 (the minimum food budget for a family of your size), operating $2.55, clothing $1.55 and personal $1.55. You do not mention carfares so I have not allowed for them. Your operating must cover your washing, telephone, gas, electricity and telephone bills leaving 50c extra for small household supplies under $1, (not food).

Sanitation Important

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.

Former President of the American Medical Association

ALL tenement houses should have sanitary conveniences for each apartment, unless the administration assumes complete control of their cleanliness and proper upkeep. If two or more neighbors use the same, none of them will hold himself responsible.

The closet should be well lighted and ventilated, and should not be used as storeroom for tools, washtubs, etc. Earth closets can be perfectly satisfactory in the country, but only in the country, and they should be really earth closets and not merely pans or pails.

Before complaining of a smell of sewer gas the tenant should first see whether the pan is clean. A thorough scrubbing, with a strong alkaline salt will often remove the smell. If the closet leads into a cesspool the latter must be at least a hundred feet from the dwelling and be quite watertight, covered and not allowed to overflow. To prevent sewer gas coming into the house, the closet must be trapped from the drain and the drain disconnected from the sewer by a ventilated inspection chamber.

The soil pipe must be ventilated by being carried straight up to the eaves of the house at a distance from any window, and the opening should be covered by a wire cage to prevent its becoming blocked. Plumbing should never be built into walls or run under floors, but should be "open," so that leaks may be easily detected.

Whether water is laid on or not, there should be a sink in each house to prevent the floor or walls becoming contaminated or remaining permanently damp. The sink drain should discharge into the open over a gully.

When a house receives public water supply, drinking water should be direct from the main and not from the house system. Cisterns should be tolerated only in the country or small villages, and even then should be easy to inspect and clean, and should have an overflow pipe opening directly to the outer air and not into a drain.

Many houses in the country are supplied from wells. Deep wells sunk through impermeable rock are relatively safe, but shallow wells, which are the more common, are liable to be polluted. They should be frequently inspected, and nothing should be allowed near them that is likely to contaminate the water.

Not all houses have baths, but it is possible to bathe quite satisfactorily in a basin of hot water. Everybody should bathe all over every day, and even the ordinary person requires about two hot baths a week.

CORRECT MANNERS

Wedding Attendants

MY DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Can a married woman serve as a bridesmaid? Alice is to be married soon and, of course, wants her sister to be her maid of honor. But she also wants her newly-wed girl friend in the procession. Is this correct?

ANXIOUS.

YES, indeed it is correct to have a married woman as bridesmaid. Nowadays when either the bride or groom choose attendants no distinction is made between married people. As a matter of fact, nowadays in weddings often all of the attendants are married. The bridesmaids, if they are married, are still designated as "bridesmaids," but if the chief attendant of the bride is married, her designation is changed from maid of honor to matron of honor.

Martha Lee's Reliable Pointers and Recipes

MOTHER, I hope you put up the children's school lunches and don't leave the children to do it for themselves. School lunches are so important in keeping the machinery running, and in the rush of getting off in time, sister isn't going to take the trouble to work out the well balanced combinations that she and the boys need.

Only a mother has the patience to butter the bread evenly, scald out the box, cut the sandwiches attractively and wrap each one in oiled paper. But what a difference it makes at lunch time, when a girl is "simply starved," if she finds a tasty nourishing lunch packed by somebody's loving hand, instead of a few cold odds and ends thrown in at the last moment. I suppose it is well to chastise the spirit and subdue the flesh, but not when you have to go back into a latin or algebra class for two more periods. And not when your body and brain need every ounce of energy they can get to keep going and growing at the same time.

Just the other day I was talking with a mother who had been putting up her children's lunches for eight years, and knew the subject from A to Z. Her first rule was to have an attractive box, one that could be cleaned easily, and carried conveniently. This she fitted with a small jar with a screw top, for pickles, olives, a preserved fig or two, or vegetable salad.

The basis of the lunch was always a good sandwich, usually made of whole wheat bread, and filled with meat, or, when used as the sweet part, with jelly or conserve. Then a slice of cake, or cookie or two, and a piece of fruit.

So far so good, but how about drinks? A glass of milk, cocoa, or a cup of soup are necessary to suppress that mournful wail, "How dry I am." Usually, these can be bought at the school. They can be, but many times "weinies," soft-sweet-soda-water and candy are bought instead.

Here are a few suggestions for lunches, which may save many a penny and anxious thought.

1—Boston brown bread sandwiches, with filling of cottage cheese mixed with a little strained tomato. Place a lettuce leaf over this and season with mayonnaise. Cookies and 1 orange.

2—Three-tiered sandwiches. Use thinly sliced whole-wheat bread. Spread peanut butter between one of the layers, and raspberry jam on the other. Tuck a pear into the box, or fill the jar with stewed tomatoes. Educator crackers.

3—Egg salad sandwich, made of long finger rolls, hard-boiled eggs, chopped up and moistened with mayonnaise, and a lettuce leaf or two. Several small sweet pickles, and a slice of cake.

6—Peanut butter sandwiches. Deviled eggs. Whole wheat hermit and junket in little covered jar.

Where there are several children in the family to carry lunches, the quickest way of preparing sandwiches is to take half of a sandwich loaf and cut off the crusts. Then slice it across lengthwise, dividing it into three big slices. Butter the parts, put cream cheese and cut up olives on one of them, place another slice of bread upon that. Press all together firmly and slice as for ordinary slices of bread. Wrap each slice in waxed paper. This gives a tasty, delicious and attractive sandwich, as each slice shows the different fillings. Sometimes the loaf is divided into four parts instead of three, and peanut butter is used for the third filling.

Meat Sandwich Filling—One cup roast beef finely chopped, 2 tablespoons boiled salad dressing, 2 tablespoons minced pickle, 2 hard cooked eggs chopped fine, a few drops of kitchen bouquet, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Mix ingredients thoroughly. Spread on buttered slices of bread. Lay on lettuce leaf, trim off edges and cover with another slice of bread. Wrap each sandwich in paraffine paper. This filling will make about 8 sandwiches.

Lunch box ideas are always welcome. Thousands of Boston Evening American readers would love to know what you put into the children's boxes. Won't you please tell us?

Yours for suggestions,

Martha Lee

POPPIES AND PAJAMAS

BRIGHT POPPIES put Blue Mondays to rout. California sends cheery nasturtiums, sweetheart roses, frail orchids, snowy orange blossoms—a host of lovely flowers for table centers, vases and flower dishes. Exquisitely fashioned in wax. More natural than Nature. Heat won't melt them. Easily cleaned with water. Found in gift shop for 50c and up. A spray or two in flower dish gives home imprisoned sunshine.

A BAND OF GOLD around your neck is today's touch of taste. Discovered charming "dog collars" at big jeweler's for $2.00. Gold filled, silver plated. Some of fine braided mesh. Others set with stones. Were valued up to $7.50. More popular than ever with high neck fall frocks.

WHY A NIGHTIE when dashing crepe pajamas are only $2.00? Two-piece. Plain colored trousers, gayly figured blouse. Comfy. Easily laundered. Designed after daintiest of sport beach models. Predicted answer to "What the College girl shall wear for Evening."

POOR FRIEND SICK-A-BED? Do send her (or him) some tasty little jars of jelly, jam and marmalade. Packed in exquisite boxes. Makes folks feel better right away. Boxes with two jars 50c—three jars 75c—four jars $1.00.

WORRY WRINKLES fade away. Tired skins become fresh. Sagging muscles brace up. When new contour cream is used. Tones up—rounds out, softens and beautifies the skin. In luxurious package for $1.50.

DEMI-NOTES ARE better than no notes. Good-Better-Best, when written on dainty demi-note paper. Comes in blue, orchid, tan. 24 notes in gift box to match for $1.00. Notes are written on two inside folds, perforated edges stick it together. Then addressed and stamped away it goes with friendly greeting. Ever so attractive for travelers.

WOODEN HAT BOX is handiest piece of luggage seen. Sleek as most expensive leather. Defies baggage smashers. Light and convenient to carry. Only $3.50. Imported at that.

PARIS SPONSORS SPORTS bracelets. Featured at foreign society resorts. Saw some with exquisite figures of horses, dogs, golf scenes, etc., set in medallions, connected with white gold-filled links. Exact imitation of expensive white gold and crystal importations. Decidedly smart.

THE ELUSIVE JASMINE has been captured, and transformed into choicest face powder. First time in powder form. New number from over the seas. Packed in beautiful box. A powder that clings and charms.

FIRST CALICO CATS—then calico matches. Anyway, matches had tips every color of rainbow. Packed in pretty round boxes, for bridge parties, booby prizes, or for anybody who likes a bit of sugar on doughnut of life. Color—fun—and something different. For 25c.

DAINTY COMPACTS—rare as blue orchids. Just come to town. 'Bout two inches big. Shaped like oblong hinge. Very thin. Exquisitely etched. Filled with choicest compact powder. Just the sort of pretty thing one loves to own.

COMFORT BEGINS WITH END table. Especially an artistic mahogany finished one I found for $2.45. Just right size and shape to nestle up to big lounge chair by fireplace. Like a faithful friend right there where you want it. Was $4.25 formerly.

POPPIES, PAJAMAS, bracelets, and compacts. Like musical medley. Little bit of everything. But I liked them all, and you will, too. To receive more information on these items, check the ones which interest you, and send list to me, with your name and address, and a loose 2c stamp.

Faithfully yours,

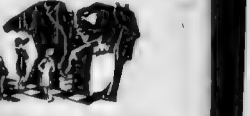
The WOMAN GAME or "GLITTER" by KATHARINE BRUSH



A Story of College Life; a Fast and Furious Romance

CHAPTER XXII

THEY had shut the sun from Eunice's bedroom, and in the semi-dark Jock could distinguish her only as a wave down a silken coverlet and a pale face haloed with black hair. And hands. Hands that picked at the silk of the coverlet ceaselessly, like little white rats nibbling.

He went to the side of the bed and took one of the hands in his. "Eunice——"

Her voice was a breath that hardly stirred. You had to strain your ears to catch it. "Jock—I'm—glad you came."

"Of course I came," he said, "as soon as I heard. Eunice you know what this means to me——"

"I know, Jock."

He pulled up a chair and sat down. He felt helpless trying to think of something to say. His mind was full of questions—but not now. He must say something comforting now. Poor Eunice, oh, poor little girl! . . . All his antagonism toward her fled away, now beaten off by the sight of her suffering. "She loved Brad," he told himself, and marveled that he could ever have thought she did not.

He held her hand tight, and once he reached awkwardly and stroked her forehead.

She began to cry then. As though his touch had given anguish a release. Great dry sobs, like coughs, shook her from head to foot. She flung an arm across her face, and below it Jock could see her lips writhing grotesquely. They were saying things those lips. Hoarse incoherent things. He leaned closer. "I was asleep, and—oh my God, I can hear it yet—and I ran in—on the floah, lyin' theah on the floah—" She sat up suddenly and faced Jock and screamed. "I was a good wife to him—I was—I was——. You must say I was, Jock."

"Of course," Jock said. "Of course you were. Don't Eunice—you must not let yourself go like this——"

The strange woman came hurrying in, and between them they quieted her. She lay back again, gasping, rolling her head from side to side on the pillows. The woman mixed up something in a glass and gave it to her, and she drank it, spilling some.

"I'll go," Jock mumbled. "I'll come again later."

A cry from Eunice halted him. "Wait, Jock! I have somethin' to give you——"

He turned quickly. "Did he——"

"He left you a lettah." She pointed. "Theah. On the bureau."

Jock picked it up, not looking at it. Cold . . . cold it was to the fingertips. . . . He crumpled it in his palm. He strove not to think of it, yet, but to fix his mind on Eunice. He bent down and brushed his lips across her cheek. "Eunice dear, try to rest, won't you? He'd want you to."

"I know. I will, Jock." She was passive now—broken. "Come back soon," she whispered.

"In an hour or two," he promised.

On his way out they let him pause in the quiet room across the hall for a little while.

Back at the fraternity house Bones Allen met him at the door and demanded immediately, with mingled fear and curiosity in his wide eyes, "Did you see him?"

And Jock said a queer thing which he afterward never quite understood. He said, "No. He wasn't there."

Brad had written:

"Jock old man, I couldn't go without leaving you some word. You'll wonder why I'm doing it, and I want to try to make you see.

"I had to have money. I had to, to make Eunice happy. She was miserable married to a poor man having to do without things. She stood it for years, but this Fall she began saying she was sick of it, and that she was going to leave me. I didn't blame her for that, but I loved her so, Jock. I couldn't have stood it if she'd gone away. I had to think of something. I had to have money, and there was only one way to get a lot of it quick, and that was bootlegging. People were making fortunes at it, and nobody knew. That was the part that appealed to me. It was sure-fire, and nobody would know.

"So I started. I had another man working with me, out of town. He did all the dirty work, and I backed him and took my share of the proceeds. I had a little money enough to start on. It doesn't take much to start in that game. I won't pretend I liked it. I didn't, I hated it. But if they didn't get it from me they'd get it somewhere else. That was what I tried to think of. Remember that night you saw me at the nigger joint, Jock? I was waiting to talk to the proprietor about a bill he owed me. I knew you wondered.

Had to See Eunice Once More to Bid Her Goodbye

"Well Eunice got a fur coat, and a machine, and other things she's wanted ever since she married me and never had and she was happy—just watching how happy she was made it pretty nearly all right. Then, how it happened I don't know, but we got hold of some rotten stuff. Wood alcohol. Bought it from a boat off the coast, and thought it was o.k.—we'd gotten stuff from the same fellow before. Tonight I learned that a man we'd sold a quart of it to had died. I went out to see him. Jock, he had a wife and four little children, all under eight years old. And no money. None of them looked as though they got enough to eat. Jock, when I saw those kids—crying, and not knowing what they were crying about except that their dad was gone and wasn't ever coming back any more—well, they opened my eyes, that's all. I knew then. I'd killed their father myself, just as sure as though I'd stuck a knife into him. Do you think I could live on after that?

"I thought I'd do it on the way home, but I couldn't, I had to see Eunice just once more and say good-bye. She wouldn't know it was good-bye, of course, until afterward, but I had to see her. That's why I came back. She's asleep now. With her hair spread out over the pillow and her eyelashes curling on her cheeks. I love her so, Jock. I love her better than anything in heaven or earth. You be good to her, won't you? You're the best friend I ever had. Oh, Jock, take care of her, help her forget!"

The next few weeks were freighted with a melancholy so heavy that his whole inner being seemed to droop with the weight of it. And mingled with the melancholy there was a protest, violent and strong. Brad's going had been so futile! So unnecessary! It wasn't right that a man like that should go for a thing like that . . . After the first chaotic hours he had reduced the situation to its fundamentals: Brad had died so that Eunice might drive a shiny new coupe and wrap about herself the skins of little animals.

In the white heat of this realization, pity for Eunice shriveled instantly, and he looked upon her with contempt and loathing. If Brad had not said, "Take care of her, be good to her," he would never voluntarily have seen her again. As it was, he paid punctual duty calls at the bungalow and pretended to comfort a grief that seemed to him now as false as was his solicitude for it. Inwardly, he was unmoved and angry. Everything she did and said he thought smacked of the theatrical . . . a widow in a movie, weeping glycerin tears. He wanted to cry, "Hypocrite!" all the time. He wanted to snarl it into her face. "Hypocrite! Go ahead and bawl because he's gone. You sent him!"

Her mourning particularly infuriated him. It was so chic. Bereavement made enticing. She affected black gowns cut to hug the breast and hips suggestively, and little black hats with abbreviated veils that made her eyes look big and wistful and her lids transparent. Bones Allen summed her up one day in a single sentence: "She may be sad, but she's nifty about it."

Between Jock and Eunice the cause of Brad's suicide was tacitly understood but never discussed. Jock was aware that Brad had written her a letter also, and that she knew. But she never mentioned it and he, taking his cue from her, refrained also from mentioning it. Nor did he divulge it to anyone else. When they asked him—and many asked him—why Brad had killed himself, he replied only, "I don't know." Nothing could have dragged the secret from him. It was Brad's secret; to tell it would be to betray a sacred confidence and to cast shadows on Brad's blameless memory. De mortuis nil nisi bonum. The papers had said "Despondency over financial matters." That was nearly enough true. Let it go. He kept Brad's letter locked away, and now and then when he was alone he took it out and read it over . . .

Jock finds his fraternity friends blame him for Brad's suicide. Read tomorrow's instalment.

Rests largely on solving their oldest hygienic problem this new way—true protection; discards like tissue

TO be fresh and charming every day, to live every day unhandicapped, to wear sheerest frocks without a second thought, any day, anywhere . . . you can now do all, a new way.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! Deodorizes, too. And thus ends ALL fear of offending.

NO LAUNDRY

✓ As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying, "KOTEX"; you ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Eight in 10 better-class women employ it. Proves the unnecessary risk of old ways.

The Alluring Phantom

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

SUCCESS. What does it mean to you? It is in time of Youth that Success appears in the form of a Phantom. The dream of winning a goal lures and leads; enthralls and absorbs; approaches triumph, but remains a phantom—until age and experience with the lessons that Life brings takes it out of the class of visionary victory and makes of Success a real thing.

But "the joyous time is when the breeze first strikes your sails and the waters rustle under your bows."

In the panoramic panel herewith portrayed appear the outstanding types of youthful aspirants in the great race for success. And what is the phantom in each that makes all other pursuits seem inane?

The young athlete with his head held high above his broad shoulders is reaching out for victory on the field of sports. To him nothing so matters save the strength and skill and training that he must acquire in order to win his goal.

To the handsome youth below who gazes so longingly up toward his vision of success it is fame as an artist, a musician or as a writer that lures him night and day.

Of these three maids, it would be the exquisite blonde just on the left of the pictured Phantom who craves homage and luxury and who regards them as of supreme moment.

Below is Miss Ambition—to STAR in some dramatic role fills her heart with longing and her mind with a succession of schemes.

But it is the beautiful brunette with the star dust in her eyes who [illegible] LOVE the one thing worth while. To attain her heart's desire means Success in the land of her dreams.

Indeed each vision of success is good enough for [illegible] and if each one could remember this truth, it might change phantom into achievement. "Success in life is a matter not so much of talent or opportunity as of concentration and perseverance."

up, see—I'm turning them. They'll be ready in a minute. Pour your coffee. Are you very late?"

She pushed her plate back. The food was choking her.

"Rosemary, you can't go all the way to college on an empty stomach. I won't have it."

"Well, I can't eat. I can't swallow, I tell you! Oh, why don't you leave me alone!" Her eyes were swimming. Why did she always have to go and cry when she was mad?

Ma did not answer. She moved heavily into the pantry, began stacking the dishes at the sink. Her heart ached for Rosemary—the baby.

The clock was striking the half hour when Rosemary got off the car. Too late for the French class, not that it mattered. Nothing mattered. She went into the library, spread her books out and tried to study.

She couldn't stay there! She'd go out and walk—take a car—anywhere. So she rode out to Franklin Park.

"Oh, Phil—come back. Don't let it end like this!" She was in the park, now, going up Schoolmaster's Hill. "Phil—you said we'd see the cherry blossoms together, you did, Phil!" She'd sit down a minute and rest. Oh, silly, silly, to care so. This. He wasn't worth it, he really wasn't!"

A little wind came and cooled her cheek. A ladybug walked sedately over her skirt. The tiny droning noises in the grass soothed her. What a fine, pretty world it was, if only you had the heart for it.

Two men were biking along. They would pass her in a few minutes. She blew her nose and began hunting for her powder puff. Bing, the college dog, was with them. He came tearing down the hill, barking joyously. Here was something else to play with! He ran round her woofing persuasively.

His cold muzzle touched her hot hand. She put her arms around him around his rough, wooly neck that smelt of incense, brush and sunshine. Maybe he'd stay with her—and leave the boys.

They were whistling to him. He pricked up his ears, undecided. Rosemary looked up, smiling.

Phil . . . and Rod Sweeney . . . here! Her smile twisted piteously. Phil . . . with Rod Sweeney . . . looking on . . .

"What are you trying to do, steal our dog?" Rod was puffing. He looked hot and tired.

"Yes; what are you doing up here—playing hookey? Pretty soft, I call it!" Phil flopped down in the grass beside her. "Sit down Rod, take it easy!"

Rod was mopping his red face with a big pongee handkerchief. Phil had stretched out full length his head in his hands. "Lord, what a run. Next time you want to do any reducing, count me out! I'm no glutton for punishment."

Rosemary waited, tense and fearful. Her heart battered against her ribs. And Phil and Rod bantered back and forth, casual joking . . . as if they had expected to see her there . . as if they were used to coming here . . as if nothing had happened.

This was your idea. I hope you enjoyed that last half mile. I'll bet I've got poison ivy."

"My idea? Didn't I say to you: 'Come with me, and have a Turkish bath?' An' you, set on getting up at daybreak an' . . ."

"Rod—for heaven's sake—let me rest. I'm gonna stay here with Rosemary and never move again. Rosemary, darling, did you bring your lunch? I could do with a ham sandwich!"

"Darling!" Rosemary caught her breath. It was all in fun, of course, but still . . but still . . .

A loaf of bread, a jug of wine, and thou beside me, singing in the wilderness. . . . That means Rosemary, not you, you big bozo!"

Rod reached for her French book and fired it at Phil. Bing began to bark excitedly. She clung to his collar, laughing a little hysterically . . . this couldn't go on . . . Phil would have to say something to her . . . if only Rod would go . . . if there was just some way of making Rod go . . .

Rod pulled his watch out. "Eleven o'clock, no wonder you're hungry. Come on—we'll feed and then I've got to get back to work. I'm no gentleman of leisure. I've got a trucking business going to the dogs on me while I'm up here improving my figure." He scrambled awkwardly to his feet.

Phil didn't move.

Rosemary waited . . waited . . .

"Come on! I got my car parked near here. Rosemary, wanta come?"

She shook her head.

Phil sat up and grinned in discomfiture. "Didn't I tell you I was going to stay right here in the wilderness, forever?"

'The Making of a Husband'---By ANN LISLE

"PALAVER!" I cried bitterly. "You're so self-indulgent that you don't even want to go through the bother of facing the agony you've caused me. You've let me wade through the mire with you again and again, and as long as I didn't say anything—but just endured and stuck, you were satisfied to put up with—being married to me. But now that I'm protecting—demanding a little of the truth that's due me, you'd rather quit than be 'bored' by talking things over with me. It's monstrous!"

"Say your say and get it over with," Jim grumbled. "I'm about fed up. You're disgusting me"—

"Now I'm disgusting you!" I murmured. "Is there no insult you can spare me?"

"You might ask yourself that," Jim said coldly.

"Don't be so high and mighty," I fairly shouted. "You don't have to take this superior attitude with me. I know—I know about Arlette's having the key to the Petruzzi apartment. I know—everything. You must recall that Diane found your wallet there when she returned. She found it and deduced the facts. And then she sent for me and told me what was so horribly, so hideously evident."

"Let's be done with this!" Jim cried. "You have judged and condemned me unheard. You believe what you choose"——

"What else is there for me to believe?" I pleaded.

"You've lived with me for several years," Jim said dryly. "Evidently in that time you've come to certain conclusions about me. Among them the paramount one seems to be that I am a rotter. And that shuts us off from further discussion. When a man finds out that his wife thinks him about the lowest form of life that crawls, there is really nothing he can say to her—nothing more she can say to him—that matters. It has all been said."

"You haven't said anything!" I protested.

"What's the use? You condemned me unheard when you were shown a piece of circumstantial evidence. You condemned me not only on the evidence of the wallet but on the accumulation of knowledge you'd built up in the years of our marriage. You think me a certain sort of man capable of doing certain sorts of things. What good would it do for me to deny? What good would it do for me to convince you that you are wrong? If you think me a coward, that is what I am. And nothing I can say will change it—eventually."

"I don't follow," I said vaguely conscious that Jim was delving deeper into the thing that I had expected, and that his way of handling it was about the last I should ever have expected.

"No. You don't follow. You haven't got me right at all. And you never will. That is the thing I'm beginning to see. After all these years we are strangers."

"Why," I cried all at sea. "That is what Ibsen's Nora said when she went out of her Doll's House. It isn't what I'd expect my husband—any husband—to say."

"Can't men come to realize they are misunderstood and to resent it?" Jim demanded. "Do you think it is any pleasanter for a man to find out that he is a stranger to his wife than it would be for a woman to learn that she is misunderstood, misinterpreted and misjudged?"

"But I'm not"—I began, only to be cut off by Jim's accusing.

"When you've done things I didn't like, did I talk them over with strangers? Can you imagine my letting someone I know as slightly as you know Madame Petruzzi come to me and tell me that you were meeting—Ralph Lacy in her apartment?"

"But I never did—I never could!" I cried angrily. "How dare you drag in poor Ralph again?"

"'Poor Ralph' is only my case in point," Jim said drily. "You need not fly to his defense. I'm not accusing him of anything. But when he gave you a valuable dog for a gift, when he spent most of his waking hours helping you look for Neal years ago, when he always took your side in a matter where we disagreed and where I didn't want you to act as you were acting, did I let someone else discuss the matter with me? No. I came to you and put my foot down—not that it did any good, but because it is my way to come out and tell you how I feel—not to go doping out how you feel before I know. And it's only today I've come to recognize the kind of woman you are—and to realize"—

He stopped suggestively, almost challengingly, so I was driven to ask:

"To realize what, Jim?"

"That the kind of woman you are was never meant to be my wife, Anne."

I wonder if anything more cruel can happen to a woman than for her to have to listen to her husband saying that she isn't the kind of woman to be his wife. When Jim told me that, it was more terrible than when Diane Petruzzi had given me the evidence of his affair with Arlette Valleau. For when a woman really loves her husband, I believe that no matter how far he strays, she always has a hope that he will come back and the realization that it will be possible for her to take him back and to try to forget the bad dream of his caring for another woman instead of her. But when a man says to his wife that she is all wrong for him—and insinuates that he is sorry he ever married her, what is she to do?

Hands were blistered, raw, inflamed

Acute form of eczema yields at last to soothing treatment

Chicago, Illinois, April 14:—"A few months ago I had what I presume was an acute form of eczema. Red blotches and cracks, which refused to heal, appeared on the fingers of my left hand, then spread to my right hand. Both became raw, inflamed and blistery. I began to apply Resinol Ointment and after using three jars my hands are again in perfect shape. Your ointment is wonderful not only for its soothing effect to burning, itching skin, but for its quick healing qualities. From today on I am a volunteer booster of Resinol." (Signed) F. R. Advice to Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Decide for Yourself

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a constant reader of your columns and am bringing before you a problem which is perplexing me.

I am nineteen years old and have been going "steadily" with a young man of twenty-two for about six months. During this time we have become quite attached to each other and intend to be married in about two years.

We are not formally engaged, but it is understood that we expect to be married. His family and my family know this.

Now this is what puzzles me: I have given up all my friends as he expects me to be home the minute when he phones or calls or makes an appointment. Furthermore he is very sensitive. For instance, if my sister or mother should happen to say anything which he does not think perfect, he comes to me and complains of the way he is being treated.

The fact is, my mother and other members of my family are most courteous to him and treat him as their son or brother. I may not have made myself clear, but he hurts my feelings and scolds me for nothing and then is sorry for everything he said.

I don't know what to think—whether to give him a good calling down or just to pass these things by.

I hope that I have made myself plain and will look anxiously forward to your answer in your very helpful columns.

PERPLEXED.

YOU are informally engaged, are you not since you expect to marry in two years and this is understood by both families. But you have not announced your engagement.

Under these circumstances it is quite fair and reasonable that you should both give up outside attention for the sake of each other.

It is too bad your fiance is so sensitive and critical. Do you feel that his many good qualities more than compensate for this unpleasant trait so that you can always patiently overlook it? He will not change after marriage, you know—in fact, he may grow more critical and easily hurt when he grows used to you and takes you for granted.

So, ask yourself quite frankly whether you can accept him just as he is, faults and all, and be happy with him as your husband year after year. If the answer is "no," better break off now, my dear, and save pain for you both later on.

On the other hand, none is perfect. If you can accept his faults philosophically and keep sweet, you may find great happiness through the marriage you are planning. None but yourself can make the final decision. Think things over and do what seems best for his happiness and yours.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX,

I am seventeen years old and in love with a young man four years my senior. He comes to see me about twice a week and calls me on the 'phone often. But if he has a date with me and is unable to keep it he sends his friend in his place. I don't care the least bit for his friend and always decline going out with him.

He goes around with other girls but asks me not to go around with other young men. When he is with other girls he is very sociable, but when with me he doesn't pet or kiss me. Please advise me.

PEGGY.

DO you think, Peggy, it's a fair bargain on his part to go about with other girls and still ask you not to enjoy the companionship of all nice young men you number among your friends? If I were you I would go about with all my friends—both girls and young men—and not take the friendship of any one young man too seriously. Think of him as just a good friend for after all that's what he is.

When he proposes marriage—if ever he does—there will be time enough for you to consider loving him.

Little Girls' Cotton Underthings Made To Look Like Real Linen

KEEP your children's cotton "undies" always fresh, clean and soft by laundering them with LINIT, the remarkable starch that preserves all fabrics. It's easy—just follow these directions:

For the Perfect Preservation of Kiddies' Clothes

Rinse until water is clear, wring out, then dip in LINIT Solution (see directions below for various fabrics). Half dry—roll tight fifteen minutes and iron. A small iron is almost essential for small garments. Hang dresses and suits, if possible, on small hangers—rather than keeping in drawers.

Linit Solutions for Children's Clothes

Cotton Underthings for Little Girls—Dissolve one-half tablespoon LINIT in a cup of cold water, add one and one-half cups hot water and cook clear.

Gingham, Linen, Mercerized Fabrics, Prints, Denim, Khaki, Kindergarten Cloth, etc.—Dissolve one tablespoon LINIT in one-half cup cold water, add three and one-half cups hot water and cook clear.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

THE Anti-Saloon League is getting worried now, since a well-known politician wants the United States government to use flavored glue on the back of postage stamps

BY mixing Scotch in with the mucilage it will make licking a pleasure

THERE are a hundred and ten million tongues in this country that need a treat

IF the government starts putting alcohol in the glue, people will be buying stamps just for the drinks.

EVERY postoffice will be a bootlegging joint.

IT'LL be wonderful to get a special delivery cocktail for ten cents

INSTEAD of opening a bottle of grape juice a man will treat his friends to a couple of one-cent stamps.

BUT some men are so thirsty they'd probably drink the post-office dry.

THE government will have to sprinkle sawdust on the floor and put a brass rail at the foot of the stamp window.

SUB-STATIONS will have swinging doors.

THOUSANDS of customers will demand free lunch with their stamps.

PEOPLE won't know whether to drink their postage straight or take a ginger ale with it.

IN the future collectors will save all the stamps they can get hold of and make wine out of them.

THE dead letter office will be a brewery.

IT'LL be hard to keep the clerks in the mail order houses from getting intoxicated.

THEY have to lick special delivery stamps, registry and air mail postage, and it's bad for them to mix their drinks.

THINK of all the pleasure shipping clerks will have in sending out parcel post packages

ORDINARY citizens will be writing letters every time they get thirsty.

THE government could double it's postage sales by mixing liquor in with the adhesives and making stamps against the law.

DAILY SHORT STORY

RENDEZVOUS

By Louis Peple Armstrong

DOLLY HOLWORTHY! Fancy seeing you here, of all places!"

Little Mrs. Winston turned at the sound of the oddly familiar voice behind her, and gasped in amazement. She held out a gloved hand while her face beamed above the big collar of the fur coat enveloping her diminutive form.

"Bill Channing, as I live."

"We seem to be 'ships that pass,' Dolly!" the tall young man exclaimed. "And once I made a vow at college never to let you out of my life! Now what under Heaven are you doing in this funny little town?"

Dolly's blue eyes widened. "This is my home," she told him in faint rebuke. "And haven't you heard about me, Bill? Why, I'm married! You must meet——"

"Ye gods! Married?" echoed Bill Channing and at the look of surprised chagrin on his handsome face Dolly laughed aloud.

"You might have told me before you went and did it," he blurted out impulsively.

"Well I never" ejaculated little Mrs. Winston "but to go back to my first thought on seeing you what are you doing, Bill, in this little town?"

Bill looked at her gravely. "I'd like to talk to you about that," he said. "Maybe you could help me. Already your mere presence has cheered me strangely! How about having lunch with me, Dolly—talking over old times? There's a little hotel down the street, the "Dew Drop Inn" and it seems a quiet sort of place."

"We-ll," faltered Dolly uncertainly, but an imp danced in her eyes. "Someone would be sure to see us and talk, me being a married woman!"

"Nonsense," exclaimed Channing masterfully. "You come right on!"

"This is a homely sort of place," said Dolly as she gazed about the tiny dining room at the hotel, at the trim little windows from the sills of which green ferns peeped between white frilly curtains. "Not a bit intriguing!" she added mischievously.

She looked at Channing's curly head as it bent over the menu, and remarked the days of the past. It was not hard to recall the frivolous, carefree feeling she had had then, that spirit of audacity which had ever driven them on in mad escapades—had even touched their friendship with romance on June nights when a bewitching moon hung low over the college campus. To her it had been just a pleasant flirtation, but she wondered now whether Bill had not been rather hard hit after all! Certainly he had not looked pleased when she told him of her marriage. She felt a wave of sympathy for the lad, and yet she could not keep down a certain sense of pleased satisfaction. This young man had probably carried her image about in his heart—all through the years!

"How about steak and fried potatoes, Doll?" the old beau asked in a matter-of-fact way.

"Goodness, no! Something light—a salad, please!" countermanded Dolly. Now wasn't that just like a man, to be having his mind on food to the exclusion of everything else?

But when they had been served and the waiter had retired, Channing settled himself into the depths of his chair, and looked across at her appreciatively.

"You haven't changed one bit—just as pretty and as charming as ever, Doll! Somebody's a mighty lucky fellow."

Dolly felt herself blushing. There was a warm light in Channing's eyes. "So you're still heart-free, Bill?" Her tones were mildly provocative and she looked across the cloth at him prettily as she raised her tea-cup, demurely grave.

Channing's big brown eyes held a very tender light. "I've come to the conclusion that a bachelor's life is a rather sad affair, Doll. A cold, conventional sort of existence never touching the true depths of human happiness."

"Tell me, Bill," she said, to lighten the tension she felt in the air about them, "why are you here? On business?"

"No," he replied, "not exactly." And he blushed. "Say, Doll, do you happen to know the Satterfields here?"

"Certainly," she answered. "Know them well, old Mr. Satterfield is one of Dad's best friends, and his wife's a dear! He's retired, you know—rather well off. They've a son in Harvard, but he's worlds younger than you, Bill—just about Jackie's age."

"And their daughter, Elsie," suggested Channing, and he casually lighted a cigarette and blew a whiff of smoke into the air.

"Elsie Satterfield?" Dolly echoed. "You know her, Bill?"

"You bet I do! And say, Doll, isn't she about the finest girl you ever saw?"

"Why—yes, Bill! She's quite nice." Dolly's voice was faint. She helped herself to more salad, and bit into her roll with forced appetite. Elsie Satterfield—that silly little chit!

"I knew you must be one of her best friends living in the same town! You'd naturally be drawn to each other—for I've always sorter admired you, Dolly!"

"Thanks!" said Dolly dryly.

"Oh please don't misunderstand—I've always realized you simply regarded me as a good, companionable sort of fellow. There's never been anything silly in our friendship—and that's why I'm counting on you to help me now—"

"Counting on me?"

"Yes," confirmed Channing, an eager light in his brown eyes. "For you see, Dollie, Elsie wrote me last week she'd broken the news—"

"News?"

"Of our engagement. And her folks are not at all pleased. They seem to be taking a rather materialistic view of the situation. They asked the poor child all sorts of embarrassing questions, and, finally suggested that I come down here to be—well—looked over."

"That is rather hard," commented Dolly, thoughtfully.

"It's fierce," exclaimed Channing. "I know! I went to see the old man at his office—I'd just been there when I saw you. He just about gave me to understand it's hopeless. Asked me my salary, and didn't seem satisfied with my prospects. And I'm not exactly a failure, Doll—though the bond business isn't on the boom right now. Still, I believe I'd be capable of keeping a roof over our heads and the wolf from the door."

"Then go and marry Elsie," Dolly's tones were curtly final.

"But after all they've said I've had misgivings," Channing confided. His voice was very humble. "A wealthy girl—used to all sorts of comforts and pleasures."

"Bosh!" exclaimed Dolly disgustedly. "That miserly old Elmer Satterfield's girl used to all sorts of things? You make me laugh! Of course they're going to make you feel cheap, if they can! But don't let 'em bluff you, Bill."

He looked at her gratefully, and seeing the dog-like admiration in his eyes, Dolly felt all of her pique and resentment suddenly swept away.

"I'm not laughing at you, silly boy!" she told him, as she caught the hurt look in his face. "I'm laughing at myself at the thoughts I've been thinking all evening! And now," she continued, gathering up her gloves and wraps, "I'm going to turn match-maker and marry off my best college beau to little Elsie Satterfield!"

And followed by the faithful swain she trod lightly from the rendezvous. At the door of the hotel she passed an old acquaintance, at whom she grinned, quite brazenly.

FADS AND FANCIES

"That's My Baby," sings Dame Fashion, who from her Parisian headquarters asserts "Baby" blue to be her favored shade for dance and evening gowns for the coming season. As an innovation, silk marquisette is frequently used, although chiffon is still used for many of the loveliest models.

Cleverly Conceived Capes are created from embroidered silken shawls, draped in a triangular way, so that one deep point is turned back and weighted with a hugh silken tassel to match the fringe. Shirred into a ruffle at the neck, this cape-shawl is tied at the front with a very attractive heavy silken cord.

Looking Like a Lamb—is supposedly to appear demure, and mild, and yet there is nothing demure about the stunning big suede r calfskin envelope purses, that are decorated in appliqued flowers of genuine baby lamb, in its natural colorings. These fur flowers, in conventional motifs, are far smarter than the metal monograms and other ornaments that formerly trimmed of this type.

When Pinned Down—jewelry fashions admit that the oddly shaped pins of precious stones, elaborately bordered in rhinestones or small crystals are possibly the smartest novelty for wear with the new afternoon frocks. Chosen to match each individual dress, brooches are selected to fit in with the color scheme of the costume, matching as closely as possible.

Being "Flat Broke" is an all-to familiar expression. Who doesn't know it? And that is where the expression of a "flat" purse came to mean an empty one. Quite the reverse is true of the owner of the flat envelope evening bags, that immediately proclaim the opulence of those fortunate enough to possess them. Equally in place with transparent Summer evening frocks, or the formal Winter types of velvet or metal cloth, these envelopes, with smaller purses to correspond, are of metal threads, woven in most exquisite and intricate designs. Firmly secured clasps make these bags as practical as they are lovely.

THE SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON—

By Helen Rowland

Go to, my Son. What profiteth it a damsel to acquire a higher education.

For lo, she studyeth harmony and composition and practiseth the fugue and the cavatina, and pursueth Beethoven and Liszt and Chopin.

Yet, behold, when she hath graduated, all the days of her youth, she playeth jazz and singeth "Red Hot Mama!" and worshippeth Irving Berlin. And all the days of her married life she singeth lullabies!

She acquireth a Parisian accent and perfecteth her German. She studyeth Greek and Latin and Hebrew.

Yet, when these are at her tongue's end, she speaketh slang and Flapperanto, all the days of her girlhood, and babbleth baby-talk the rest of her life.

She studyeth Shakespeare and Sophocles and the philosophy of the drama—and lo, she becometh a star Charleston dancer in the movies!

Behold, she taketh a four years' course in biology and graduateth at the head of her class in domestic science—and then electeth to remain a spinster all the years of her life.

She improveth her mind with calculus and trigonometry and astronomy—and then goeth into the chorus and spendeth her days counting "One-two-three!" and the deeper study of dermatology.

She studyeth art under the great masters of Paris—and returneth to Greenwich Village to spend her days in the painting of smocks and teacups.

She studyeth all the philosophers, ancient and modern—and then proceedeth to open a beauty shop, where she rejuvenateth ancient faces and modernizeth the antique china.

She learneth all the mysteries of classic dancing—and then giveth it up to study the poaching of eggs and the frying of bacon.

She becometh an expert in anthropology—and then spendeth all her life in the study of ONE MAN and the divining of his moods!

Why, then, shall a damsel seek to acquire a higher education?

For, verily, the wagon which she hitcheth to a STAR, falleth always down to earth!

And, lo, it is but a tea-wagon, a band-wagon—or a baby-carriage!

Three Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

Egypt is made up of a number of races and tribes. Many of these are so similar to each other that it is only by closely studying their customs and appearance that the difference can be determined. The Fellaheen, a more or less mongrel race, however, are distinctly apart from the average Egyptian. They are an attractive people, fairly tall, and well set-up, but they are interesting chiefly because of the strange rites that they perform.

For seven days after a child is born, it is kept in strict hiding, for no man, not even his father, is permitted to see his face. After this time, the baby is put into a sieve, and carried through the home in a procession. Lighted tapers are carried by the members of the family and the midwife scatters grain and salt around "to pacify the evil spirits." Then the child is shaken in the sieve to make it fearless, after which he is held up to the sun to sharpen his eyesight.

If the child is a girl, only women are permitted to be present at the ceremonies, and the mother invites all her women friends, but if it be a boy the father and all his friends are also spectators. The child, after it has gone through these preliminaries, is then taken to his father's quarters, to be seen by a man for the first time in its little life. There he is christened by the cadi.

The ceremony of the christening is a peculiar one. The cadi sucks in his mouth a piece of sugar-candy, and he allows some of the fluid to trickle from his mouth into the mouth of the babe, at the same time pronouncing the name of the child. The ceremony then ends with the usual feasting and merry makings.

The Fellaheen are exceptionally fond of their children and the women give up much of their time to the bringing up and proper training of their offspring.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

Many tasks are noble which awaits man's hand, that he make Earth better, so his life was planned; lending of his labor, lending of his skill, joying as he sees it growing better still! Planning, digging, building, lessening human loads, stretching better bridges, building better roads, laying cables further by the sea and land till with chain unbroken [illegible] the Earth is spanned; many tasks are noble, so man nobler grows giving to his labors all of good he knows. Many tasks are splendid, be they great or small; making someone happy may be best of all. Giving tinkling laughter in the place of sighs, painting joyous visions for some longing eyes, bringing peace to bosoms where old pleasures pall, making someone happy may be best of all!

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By William F. Kirk

You shud buy yureself a new hat, sed Ma to my dad last nite. That old hat was all rite for the Winter, but it is getting passay, sed Ma.

How do you meen, passay? I sed.

I meen it has had its day, Bobbie, sed Ma. I want yure deer father to look snappy & slick wen he goes 4th in the wurld of men, sed Ma.

You notis yure deer mother says in the wurld of men, Bobbie, sed Pa. She doesnt say anything about my beeing dressed up to maik a hit with the ladys, sed Pa.

I want everybody to ad-mire you, sed Ma. A woman that is fond of her husband wants everybody to think he is swell, sed Ma.

I suppose so, sed Pa. A wife prubly wonders sumtimes if she was snowblind wen she picked her mate, sed Pa, so she wants to know if he looks good to other peepul, too, sed Pa.

In any event, sed Ma, I want you to buy a new hat. At this time of yeer, sed Ma, peepul turn to thots of new things. Even the trees in the forist, sed Ma, throws on new garmints of green, sed Ma, & peepul paint thare houses & thare fences, etc. It is cleanup time, sed Ma, so you must be in tune with the Infinnitive, sed Ma. That is a whale of word I doant know what it meens & Neether does Ma, I bet.

Well, sed Pa, I will do as you say. I will buy a new lid, but sumhow or other, sed Pa, I can't help thinking this is jest a Four Runner of severil new lids for you, sed Pa. Any time you start wanting me to [illegible] up, sed Pa, I haf always notised that you start throwing on the dog yureself sed Pa.

That is all the thanks I git for taiking a interest in yure looks, sed Ma. I will say no moar.

Say moar if you want to, sed Pa.

You bet I will say moar if I want to, sed Ma.

I want you to say moar if you want to, sed Pa.

Cut it out, you 2, I sed. I am trying to maik out this puzzil in the newspaper & you 2 are gabbing too much, I sed.

Bobbie, sed Pa, cum here.

I guess I will cross you this onst, I sed, & I runned out & hid in the woodshed. I haf got a new hiding plaice under the floor of the woodshed, Pa calm & looked, but he cuddent find me. I maid up my mind laitly that I aint going to taik any moar spankins if I can hide until Pa fergits about spanking me, that is what thay call stratigy in war times, & it is war times offen enuff at our house laitly.

Our teecher sed we shud never run away from nothing, that is all rite if you are groan up, but a littel kid has got to use his legs until he has got a knockout Wallip in eether hand, then let his crule pairents Bewair, lest thay Rew the day. I will now end this essay, it is hie time, no moar for the present.

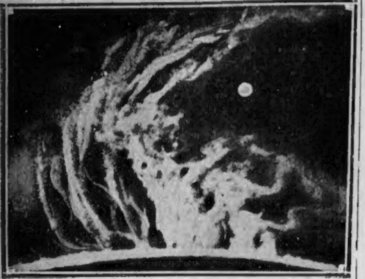
We Think We're Important

This Picture Ought to Cure Us



A new instrument making pictures of our great sun should make us feel small. The little white spot in this picture is our earth.

At the Wilson Observatory Dr. George Hale, able American astronomer, uses a new instrument that makes it possible to see the sun and its marvels, clearly, with the eye.

Here is printed one picture showing the surface of the sun, with the flames bursting up above it. This the scientists call "a solar prominence." This particular prominence dashes up from the surface of the sun to a height of 148,000 miles.

The little round white spot in the distance shows our earth, one million times smaller than our sun.

That single flame is 148,000 miles high. The diameter of our earth is only 8,000 miles. And the sun that lights and warms our corner of the universe, takes care of all the other planets that sail with us around it, is ONE MILLION TIMES AS BIG AS OUR EARTH.

You remember that our light-giving sun is a million times the earth's size, and that other suns in space are a million times as big as our sun, therefore a MILLION MILLION TIMES AS BIG AS OUR EARTH.

That should help us to realize that we are small, and that, possibly, man does not play the important part in the cosmos that he THINKS he plays.

A thousand planets, the size of this earth, falling on the sun would produce less effect than a thousand hailstones on a red-hot furnace. The hailstones might reach the furnace. Our earth and a thousand like it, falling to the sun would be burned and dissipated in gases long before reaching the sun's surface.

Therefore let us be modest. At the same time, however, let us be proud of the fact that, tiny creatures as we are, the brain of man yet measures the distance from the earth to the sun, weighs the sun and the planets accurately.

We are at least PART of the big machine. That is a great honor.

The Significance of Canada's Election

The sweeping Liberal victory in Canada will be pleasantly received in the United States for various reasons.

It will, in the first place, insure against an early revision of Canada's tariff upward, which would retard a free flow of commerce across the border.

It seems likely, also, to check any new policy of preferential relations with Britain, for which the Imperial Conference in London in October would have offered a dramatic setting.

It is a sign, too, of growing Canadian nationalism, which, if not wishing an independent status politically, at least declines to be held in leading strings.

British imperialists may thank Lord Byng of Vimy for this check to their dream of imperial consolidation. Had he, as Governor-General, been as wise as the present King of England, who never takes part in Parliamentary action save as advised by his Ministers, the reverse might not have happened.

He tried to interfere, but a free people, much as they respected his office and himself, justly resented a misuse of power.

No reason appears why the Liberal Government in Canada, with this new mandate of popular confidence, should not have a normal duration of prosperous administration. Americans certainly will wish that it may.

A great deal of superfluous speculation is afloat concerning the future relations between Canada and the United States.

The only relations which sensible persons in both countries desire are those which result from self-respect, similarity of ideals, propinquity and good will.

The Liberal victory will emphasize the first, the second and the fourth of these factors and geography assures the third.

Daylight Saving

Our last long afternoon comes September 26. Since April we have had our extra hour, snatched literally out of the air. Who shall say that one gets nothing for nothing, if daylight-saving be considered?

Before some unknown genius conceived the idea, and newspapers and public officials sold it to us, that hour was lost. Now every year for five months it brings joy and gladness to millions. Incidentally it provides a grievance to other millions.

Most of us will soon begin to go home in the dark until next May. Don't forget to change the hands of the clock.

SUICIDES ARE WORST HERETICS OF LIFE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A MAN involved in the crash of some banks in Georgia some time ago blew out his brains.

Every once in a while you hear of someone's desperately committing suicide or trying to because he has lost money or is disappointed in love, or for some similar reason.

These people are the worst kind of heretics.

They are the heretics of life.

Pastor Wagner said that the fundamental belief is a belief in life. This underlies all creeds, or ought to.

Nothing is superior in importance to the value of living, unless it is some supreme question of sacrifice or patriotism where it is clearly our duty to give up life rather than honor.

This does not apply, however, to those who are simply disappointed. In contrast to these rashly importunate people are such stories as one which appeared in the press not long ago of a man who had gained his sight at the age of fifty and began at that time slowly to learn to read.

So many a man has lost his fortune and has bravely commenced to make another effort in old age. Many an invalid takes up the burden of life cheerfully and makes what he can out of the fragments remaining.

The man who kills himself because he has lost his money simply values station in life more than life itself, as Ruskin says.

Nothing that is an appurtenance to life can equal in importance the value of life itself. No one knows what the future may bring forth, and no matter how dark the prospects it is the business of a brave man to wait and see what is in store for him.

The effect of failure often is bitterness and a feeling of panic. If we weather the first effects things may take a turn. It is not well for us to pin our whole hopes upon wealth or position, or any such thing. Life has many compensations and the satisfactions of life do not always come in the way we expect them. Some compensation, however, is reasonably sure if we take our stand upon the great integrities.

ABOUT THE NEAR-GREAT AND WOULD-BE GREAT

All the worthwhile people are not at the top of the ladder.

Likewise all the people who have the highest positions have not reached them by their entirely unaided efforts.

At times you may imagine yourself on a higher plane than your associates; but if you were to meet those higher-ups you think so much about you might be cast off by them in just the way you are trying to cast off your present crowd.

You seldom make any effort to get closer to those in your present circle because you think you have a future that does not include them.

But if you would unbend and mingle you might find as much good sense and as much that is elevating and beneficial among those you avoid as there is anywhere else.

You are looking longingly ahead toward the time when you will join the coterie of intellectuals or plutocrats.

If you should reach the group you have in mind you might find yourself far outclassed and by them considered a failure.

In your present place you are considered of more than ordinary ability. To grow, one must meet the exceptional; but don't neglect your present good friends for those who might be but little interested in you.

A PRIZE FOR INCHES.

LIEUTENANT EDWARD HICKEY of C Company, 101st Infantry, was awarded the prize for being the tallest man in the American Legion parade in Salem. Edwards stands six feet three and three-quarters inches in his socks and is built in proportion. He is one of the youngest, if not the youngest, National Guard officers in the State. His brother, CAPTAIN THOMAS HICKEY, is skipper of C Company. They live in NEWTON.

EDUCATION DEFINED.

Asked by a Western student to define education, PROF. J. M. ENGLISH, instructor at NEWTON THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL for the past forty years, replied:

"Education means: (1) Thorough command of one's intellectual powers; the ability to think clearly and accurately. (2) Sound learning. (3) Noble character. (4) Personal efficiency."

LIKES MALE AUDIENCES

MRS. S. E. STEVENS of MALDEN, candidate for REPRESENTATIVE in Middlesex district, was asked by friends what effect a male audience had on a woman stumper.

"They don't bother me in the least," replied MRS. STEVENS. "On the contrary, I like to speak to men. Male audiences always enjoy apt stories and I season my argument with enough to keep them entertained. Another advantage is that you know men are not picking you to pieces like an audience of women is likely to do, if lukewarm or unfriendly."

THE FIGHTING PARSON

THE REV. WILLIAM J. FARRELL, chaplain of the 102nd INFANTRY, known as "THE FIGHTING PARSON," never misses a meeting of Newton Post AMERICAN LEGION of which he is an active and honored member. In spite of multiple duties in his parish in Wilmington, to which he was transferred some time ago from West Newton, the "PADRE" shows up regularly with the rest of the gang.

He is a legionnaire and not a "SKYPILOT" at all sessions of Post 48. He used to pay his railroad fare both ways but now he drives in style in the fine sedan which the 101st REGIMENT presented to him. CHAPLAIN FARRELL won a DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS and a CROIX DE GUERRE for gallantry in action and wears two wound stripes.

HOUDINI EAGER.

HOUDINI says he is not only willing, but eager to meet DR. CLARENCE WHEELER, noted spiritualist from LOS ANGELES, who while the guest of friends in Lynn announced that he had been trying without success to test HOUDINI'S powers in public.

"Never heard of DR. WHEELER," said HOUDINI. "Who is he? Tell him I'll meet him on any public platform and forfeit $10,000 if my test fails."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

LITTLE ELLEN'S mother wants to know if I ever heard of such nonsense;

Why, when she went to school it was enough if you had your passing marks from the previous grade. Just so long as you got over 70 per cent. in the three R's gog'raphy, grammar and maybe philosophy, everyone was satisfied. But lookit the way they fuss over kids now. There's Ellen, who's nine and has always stood well in her lessons—she's starting a new grade this Fall. And do you think it's enough for her to show her promotion marks? Not at all. She has to pass an "I. Q. test"—whatever that may be. Did I ever hear of anything so silly? And what is an I. Q. test at any rate?

An I. Q. test isn't as silly as you think it is, mother.

I. Q. means Intelligence Quotient. I don't know why they have to tag sensible working schemes with such enchilada titles but it's a little trick they have. In simple, easily chewed English, I. Q. means the brain line-up of the person who is undergoing the test.

The I. Q. test does not attempt to discover all that little Ellen knows or may learn. It simply attempts to show how her nine-year-old brain stacks up with other nine-year-old brains. It attempts to do this in order that Ellen may have the best possible chance in her school life and not be given mental burdens which she cannot bear.

"But how do they know exactly what a nine-year-old brain should be able to do?"

They don't know exactly. But after studying thousands of brains during the course of many years educators and psychologists have arrived at rough estimates of the capability of the average brain at various ages. They have determined that a brain of a certain age should be able to work at a certain speed and to comprehend certain subjects and produce certain results.

"But didn't the old examinations and promotion marks show that?"

"No. The old grading marks worked a great deal of unfairness, as generations of stunted, discouraged lives can testify. The old marks merely showed an ability to retain certain definite facts and instructions—as a parrot or trained dog might retain them.

Nor the speed or the adaptability or the range of that brain. A bright, flash-in-the-pan mind made a brilliant showing under the old system of marking, and a slow, careful brain often made an extremely poor showing.

But with I. Q. tests, educators hope to find the real age and quality of the brain. For example, little Ellen's body is nine years old but she may really have a twelve-year-old brain. Then, for her own good, she should be given some twelve-year-old work. Yet she should not be allowed to push herself beyond her strength—and the I. Q. test will show just what her strength and tension are.

Or, on the other hand, her nine-year-old body may house a seven-year-old brain. This does not prove that Ellen is stupid, or will be an unintelligent woman. She may indeed be an extraordinarily intelligent woman when she has matured. But for the present her intelligence is retarded. She should then be given work which fits her development, and aids her progress.

Such is the aim of the I. Q. test. These tests are being used in many institutions besides schools. A big taxicab company recently used them to determine the mental ages of their drivers in an effort to cut down the number of accidents caused by reckless driving.

Are I. Q. tests perfect?

Of course they aren't. All psychological work is still in its infancy. There is probably much that is confused and foolish in this work, as there is in all pioneering effort. But at least they represent an honest effort to give each other a better deal. And that's a long stride ahead, isn't it?

Consider the Beginning

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

"As a beginner I have learned of a nebular theory and of a planetesimal theory, both of which have the sun as the origin of the planets. However, I have seen nothing as to the origin of the sun. Why do texts always avoid that question? They tell how the planets, in one way or another, came from the sun, but leave me to imagine, if I can, the creation of the sun. Do they mean to admit that there was a "creation" of the sun in the Bible sense? But since religion is unlogical, that would be an unbased theory." S. M.

THIS corespondent's complaint undoubtedly has some basis. In clearing the decks of the hamper caused by their wrecking of the Laplacean hypothesis of planetary origin, up-to-date astronomers have encountered something like a dilemma, because they cannot get out of the entangling nebular theory which, like a vast spider's web, envelops the whole universe, gleaming out of every obscure corner.

The new theories developed by astrophysics have enormously expanded our apparent knowledge of stellar evolution, and they give us a logical, and an amazingly interesting, story of how stars (suns) run through their enormously long periods of alternate development and decline: at first getting hotter and brighter, then becoming colder and fainter; now swollen to incredible dimensions as "giants," and now shrunken into fading "dwarfs." But they leave us ignorant, perhaps more so than the older theory did concerning the first starting point. Behind the multiplicity of their absorbing details, the great back-ground of common origin is obscured or lost from sight. How did the stars become stars, to begin with? What were they before they were stars?

The nebular theory worked upon by the great German thinker, Kant, and the great French mathematician, Laplace, was, at least for popular comprehension, more clear and definite on this fundamental point. Of course it did not clear up the mystery of the first beginning, for that is beyond human grasp; but it presented a common ground from which everything could spring, viz., the chaotic state of matter called "nebula." And like the botanist, who, given seeds and plants to begin with, can tell you all about the growth of vegetables and trees, so the proponents of the nebular theory, taking the nebulous state for a starting point, a sown field of the universe, invented a logical way of development for both suns and planets. Once started going, the automatism seemed perfect.

DO YOU KNOW-

An organ made entirely of paper is a feature of a church in Belgium. The pipes are rolls of cardboard, and the sound is said to be sweet and powerful.
